DEMOCRATS DISCUSS TARIFF

Underwood Makes Known the Tariff
Views of President-Elect Wilson.
Tariff Hearings Soon.

Washington, January 1.—Representative Underwood and Senator Martin, democratic leaders respectively of the house and senate, had a conference today over plans for democratic tariff revision and for legislative work during the balance of the short session that reopens tomorrow. No definite plan of action for the present session was agreed on, but the democratic leaders discussed in detail President-elect Wilson's tariff views as outlined to Mr. Underwood at Trenton yesterday.

Both houses will confront crowded programs when they reconvene at noon tomorrow. In the case of legislation, investigation hearings and the Archibald impeachment proceedings, the democratic forces will bring out during the next few weeks the full scope of tariff revision preparation and party organization for the special session that is to begin probably about March 15.

General Plan of Tariff Revision.

Representative Underwood has not discussed publicly the details of his conference with President-elect Wilson, but it is known that the general plan of the tariff revision was agreed over. In the meetings to begin this week of democratic members of the ways and means committee, the opinions of the president-elect and the general understanding arrived at between him and Mr. Underwood will be considered fully, and an outline made of the various tariff revision bills that will be prepared in advance for the special session.

The tariff hearings will begin next Monday, and the large volume of mail received from manufacturers, commercial organizations and consumers indicates a widespread interest in the woolen, chemical and iron and steel tariff schedules. Scores of men representing the producing and manufacturing interests of the country are expected to give their tariff views to the ways and means committee.

While the Archibald impeachment trial will reopen in the senate Friday, the principal business of congress will not be resumed until Monday.

The money trust investigation, the tariff hearings and other important committee work then will be added to the pressure incident to getting the big appropriation bills finished before March 4. At an informal democratic conference today it was agreed that the appropriation bills had made such progress that there probably will be no difficulty in passing all of them before adjournment.

The Tariff Appointments.

The problem connected with confirmation of President Taft's appointments will be taken up in the senate

The park board war, precipitated when Commissioner M. B. Young started a movement to oust Dan Carey, general manager of Atlanta's parks, from his $2,500 job, was furiously fought out at the board session Wednesday afternoon.

The board did not oust Manager Carey. He was elected to serve another term, with a glowing prospect of having his salary raised to $2,750 per annum.

Commissioner Young was unseated by the board for his failure to attend meetings in November and December. He refused to vote when Mayor Courtland Winn nominated Manager Carey. He was supported by Commissioners Frank Wilby, of the second ward, and R. A. Burnett, of the third ward.

Mayor Winn Defends Young.

Mayor Winn defended Commissioner Young. The mayor took the position that even though the commissioner failed to give "providential reasons" for not attending two consecutive meetings, he could not be unseated until after his successor be elected and qualified.

Commissioner Young was backed by an opinion by City Attorney James L. Mayson, declaring that the commis-

Multi-Millionaire Has Eluded Army of Congress Sleuths—Something to Happen Today.

New York, January 1.—The Pulo "money trust" committee will be asked tomorrow to consider the advisability of issuing an attachment empowering deputy sergeants-at-arms of the house of representatives and private detectives in their employ to force their way into the Fifth avenue mansion of William Rockefeller and subpoena him to appear as a witness before the committee in Washington.

This was the announcement made late tonight by William Riddell, sergeant-at-arms of the house, after fruitless efforts by his force of deputies and detectives to find Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Riddell said Jerry South, chief clerk of the house, left tonight for Washington to confer tomorrow with members of the Pulo committee. "I am not enough of a lawyer to know what the powers of the committee are," said Mr. Riddell, "but I expect something important to happen within twenty-four hours."

New Year Day Siege.

The New Year's day siege of the Rockefeller house passed with little incident. That there would be no cessation in the strict guard about the dwelling was asserted by Riddell.

It is forty-four days since the subpoena for Mr. Rockefeller was issued. Mr. Riddell, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, said that as soon as he could get into communication with Chairman Pulo he would submit evidence that Mr. Rockefeller was deliberately evading service. If the house were convinced by the evidence, it would be within its power to issue an attachment enabling sergeant-at-arms Riddell to break into the Rockefeller homes to find him.

The reports are, however, that last night, at least, Mr. Rockefeller was at neither of his homes, but was with his son, William G. Rockefeller, in Greenwich, Conn. His physician stoutly maintains that Mr. Rockefeller's physical condition is such that he could not appear as a witness in the investigation, and would continue to be a hazard to his health that might even prove fatal.

May Not Be at Home.

The idea gained ground today that Mr. Rockefeller, after all, was not here, but Charles F. Riddell, sergeant-at-arms of the house, said that he would take no chances and would continue the siege. One of the detectives was certain that Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller left their residences here on Sunday morning.

A man who left the Rockefeller house this morning and ran across the street to post a letter caused a flurry among the early shift of detectives. One of them tried to see the address on the envelope but the servant was too quick for him. As a result of the incident, however, the post-office authorities may be asked to help the process servers by noting the addresses on the Rockefeller mail.

J WYLLIE SMITH III;
ASKS ATLANTIAN FOR $25

J. Wyllie Smith, former secretary and manager of the Commercial Loan and Trust company, which he is charged with wrecking, and for whom detectives have been searching for months, has been heard from.

A letter from Smith has been received by Judge E. O. Williams, of College Park, in which he says that he is ill with typhoid fever in a small town in Mexico, and would like to secure a loan of $25.

Those who have been anxious to ascertain the exact spot where Smith was hiding will find little satisfaction in his letter to Judge Williams, for the epistle was mailed from El Paso, Texas, by a third party, who said that Smith was more than a hundred miles from El Paso, and the money, if sent, would be forwarded to him.

Smith is said to have had a checkered career since fleeing from Atlanta. At one time he was reported as having enlisted with the rebels who were seeking to overthrow the Mexican government. Once he was under arrest, and officers started after him; but he escaped, and when last heard from was hiding among the mesquite and cactus of Mexico.

Judge Williams, when asked if he sent the $25, replied:

"I most certainly did not."

BEFORE HE KILLED SELF
HE LAUDED JOHN D., JR.

New York, January 1.—A note in which a tribute was paid to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was found after the discovery of the suicide yesterday of Barrington Hutton, just 21 years old, who hanged himself at the home of his parents on Central Park West. In his note the young man said he had been strongly impressed with the talk to young men which Mr. Rockefeller gave at Tarrytown on Sunday.

"It is a good thing for us that money finds itself in the hands of such young men as Mr. Rockefeller," the suicide wrote. "He is just the one that knows that money is not all, and the few words he spoke to young men the other evening has done more good than he can ever imagine."

Young Hutton was recently employed on the Panama canal.

IT'S 1913, MR. LAWMAKER!

"BEST DEMOCRAT"
DECIDED TONIGHTRoosevelt, Wilson and Bryan
Are Matched in This Debate.

The result of the late altercation at Baltimore and November's corroboration to the contrary, the fate of the schoolmaster from New Jersey once more hangs in the balance tonight.

The silver-tongued orators of the debating society of the Beavers' club will decide tonight the question of "Who is the best living democrat?"

Regardless of whomsoever may be adjudged the "best democrat," it appears that there will be some who have intimated that they stood as much as deuce-high as democrats in whose hearts must rankle the bitterness of neglect. Among those who have been "left in outer darkness" are the Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri, speaker of the house; Oscar Underwood, scion of the southland and a bred-in-the-bone democrat; Governor Harmon, who, with all Wall street at his back, waged war against the schoolmaster from New Jersey, and numerous others who have flattered themselves upon their standing in the ranks of democracy.

No Fault of the Beavers.

This, of course, is no fault of the Beavers' club debating society, for if the society should produce a debater to champion the cause of every staunch democrat, it would probably have to include in its membership most of the population of Georgia.

But the gods are often kind in unexpected places. For this reason there will be cause for rejoicing at Oyster Bay tonight, and the broad white smile, which has of late come to resemble the saintly habitations of the dead, will again bloom in that inimitable manner which can be provoked only by the music of the name of a certain ex-oh, bitter prefix—president upon the lips of the people. The cause of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will be championed tonight by the Hon. J. A. McMichael. Mr. McMichael will argue that, while the colonel is technically a progressive, he is, by the principles of his doctrine, a democrat—and, what's more, the greatest of them all.

There will be six speakers in all at tonight's debate, and each speaker will select his ideal of the best democrat.

Has No Ax to Grind.

The sterling worth of President-elect Woodrow Wilson will be exploited by Colonel Lowndes Calhoun in the colonel's most inimitable style. Of course, it is understood in the beginning that President Wilson will not be expected to take whatever of things flattering that Colonel Calhoun may have to say to indicate that the president is placed under any obligation to appoint the colonel to a place in the cabinet.

Nor is it believed that Hon. W. H. Harrison has any ax to grind when he unlimbers his oratory upon the magnificent character and the meritorious career of United States Senator Hoke Smith, who will deal out various and sundry juicy federal plums in Georgia.

As for the other speakers, all taint of suspicion is immediately lifted from their fair names by their selections of the men they will champion. Hon. J. T. Dabney will attempt to show cause why William Jennings Bryan, who, it may be recalled, has on several past occasions taken part in democratic affairs, is the ideal exponent of democratic principles. Other speakers will be T. L. Haynes, W. N. Fowler and John T. Garner, alternate. Hon. Malvern Hill will act as chairman of the judges.

The Beavers' club has organized a debating society which will settle questions of current interest on the first Thursday night of each month, but never in years to come will they hit upon a more momentous ground for argument than that of tonight's contest.

CLEMENCY PLEA FOR MRS. KING
REFUSED BY SLAIN MAN'S KIN

Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special.)—Despite the pleading of W. S. Simmons, brother of Mrs. Kate King, who plotted the murder of her husband, at Round Oak, that they do not demand that she pay for her crime with her life, the members of the dead man's immediate family declare that they have no intention of weakening and will insist that Mrs. King go to the gallows.

Simmons appeared today at a conference of relatives of King who are active in the prosecution, and begged them not to insist on a death sentence for Mrs. King.

"Spare my sister from that terrible fate," Simmons pleaded to George W. White and Richard King, brother-in-law and brother respectively, of Jim King, the murderer.

"Let her spend her remaining days in the penitentiary, but do not bring further disgrace upon her children by forcing their mother to mount the scaffold."

IDLERS MUST GO,
DECLARES CHIEFWith Birth of New Year,
Beavers Orders Campaign Against Loiterers.

With the birth of the new year Chief Beavers has opened a campaign to rid the city of the idle and loafers. Thirteen white men were arrested late Tuesday night and sent to police headquarters under charges of idling and loitering.

In police court Wednesday afternoon nine of them were fined $25.75 of thirty days in the stockade; two were placed on probation, one was dismissed, and the case of another was postponed until today.

At dusk Tuesday night Captain Poole sent Policemen Hardy, Baker and Englett and Detectives Garrett and Allen to the upper end of Decatur street and resorts in Wall street in the vicinity of the union station, with orders to arrest all idlers and loiterers who have been frequenting the saloons, pool rooms and other establishments. Wholesale arrests were made.

The policemen on this and other beats of the city have been instructed by Chief Beavers to clean out all vagrants and to make arrests where evidence is sufficient to convict on the charge of idling and loitering.

Among those arrested on new year's eve were J. Fitzgerald, of the Kimball house; William E. West, 423 Luckie street; Frank Walker, 63 East Linden street; Bud Coursey, 53 Hill street; J. Warr, 390 Whitehall street; Cliff Murray, South Atlanta; Jack Percy, 143 Hill street; R. F. McGilvary, 53 Gartrell street; Sam Vaughn, 44 Emmett street; F. M. Stowers, 90 Loomis avenue, and Fred Elliott, 149½ Whitehall street.

PLAYHOUSE FATAL

She Was Trying to Light
Candles on Xmas Tree

Savannah, Ga., January 1.—Nan Louise Kinsey, aged 4, was fatally burned at the Isle of Hope in this city today. The little girl, in company with Frank Mattell, 6, was in a playhouse, near here, and attempting to light candles on a tiny Christmas tree, set her clothing on fire.

In some way the door to the playhouse became jammed, and before it could be opened, the child was frightened. Her companion was unharmed. Physicians say the little girl cannot live.

Mines of Alaska.

Washington, January 1.—The mines of Alaska produced $21,850,000 during 1912, of which $16,650,000 was gold, and since 1880, when mining first was begun there, the territory's total production of minerals has been valued at $12,000,000. The geological survey in its annual report mentions important development work in copper finds and new discoveries of gold.

HARD PRESSED,
TURKEY STOPS
HER BLUFFINGShe Concedes Nearly All Demands of Balkan States

CLINGING TO ADRIANOPLE

Turkey Yields Nearly All Save Historic City—Concessions Forced From Turk Delegates.

London, January 1.—After their protracted diplomatic skirmishing the Turks finally capitulated to a majority of the demands of the Balkan allies at today's session of the peace conference in St. James' palace. They agreed to cede practically the whole of the Ottoman empire's European dominions, except Adrianople and the territory between it and Constantinople, to their victorious but traditionally despised neighbors.

Terms Proposed by Turks.

The terms the Turkish delegates presented to the conference, as a counter proposal to the demands of the allies, were:

The rectification of the Turko-Bulgarian frontier by making the boundary west of the line now occupied by the troops of the allies in the vilayet of Adrianople.

The question of the status of Adrianople to be settled by Turkey and Bulgaria direct.

The cession of the remainder of European Turkey, including Janina and Scutari, to the allies.

The Albanian and Cretan questions to be solved by the powers.

The Aegean islands to remain Turkish.

Wrung With Great Difficulty.

The announcement of these terms was wrung from the Ottoman delegates with the greatest difficulty. They came only after Rechad Pasha had reiterated Turkey's desire to shift responsibility for adjudicating all the vital questions to the great powers and the representatives of the allies had registered their unchangeable objections to such a course and plainly had given the Turks to understand that the failure of the Ottoman delegates to embark upon serious negotiations would mean a resumption of hostilities.

Today's sitting was the most momentous and exciting since the beginning of the conference. The Greek premier, M. Venizelos, presided, and invited Rechad Pasha to present the Turkish counter proposals as the Turks last Monday had agreed to do.

Rechad said his interpretation of the badly transmitted telegrams of the early week had been correct, his government proposing to submit all questions at issue, except Adrianople, to a settlement by the powers.

Outburst of Indignation.

This caused an outburst of indignation which M. Venizelos was hardly able to put down. Several of the delegates shouted that it was not dignified to turn such vital matters into a joke, while others observed that they had not come all the way to London and remained here for three weeks to hear a proposition advanced which might have been made at the time the armistice was signed.

When relative calm was restored M. Venizelos, Dr. S. Danef, leader of the Bulgarian delegation; M. Nevaikovitch, Servian, and M. Dmyuskovitch, Montenegrin, each for their respective countries, declared they would not accept the proposed mediation by the powers, and insisted that the Turkish delegates present a practical and defined proposal.

Rechad then announced that his instructions contained another alternative, and requested time to formulate it. After a short recess Rechad stated that Turkey, desiring to give tangible proof of her love for peace, in deference to advice received from the powers, was ready to make the maximum of possible concessions to the allies by granting a rectification of the frontiers, ceding the territories westward of the 20,000 Cottolele can tops, representing an investment of $20,000, brought to Constitution by participants in the M. and M. contest.

What is it? Is it Atlanta's biggest junk shop? It looks like it, doesn't it? Whatever it may look like, though, it is not a junk shop, for it is only a corner of the storage room in the offices of The Constitution's M. & M. contest department. And what looks like the prize pile of junk is 20,000 tops of Cottolele cans.

line occupied by the allies in the village of Adrianople to them.

Bulgaria Demands Adrianople.
M. Danef said it would be impossible for Bulgaria to renounce her claim to the possession of Adrianople, and he could not accept such an indefinite offer. M. Venizelos said the proposal of Turkey must be explicitly that the question of Adrianople must be settled independently later. He added that the proposed compromise should even include territory not yet occupied by the allies, citing as an instance Jannina. M. Myuskovitch made a similar claim on behalf of Montenegro concerning Scutari. Rechad then said the translation of his communication had not been finished, but that the first part of it naturally meant the cession of Jannina and Scutari. He added that the question of Albania and Crete should be solved by the powers who already had taken up the matter.

Several delegates then asserted that this meant Turkey's renunciation of both Albania and Crete, but Rechad replied that his instructions did not extend to that. M. Novakovitch observed that the Turkish statement did not lend itself to any other interpretation, the allies taking it in that sense.

Turkey Wants Aegean Islands.
Rechad, continuing his enumeration of the Turkish proposals, added that the Aegean islands should remain with Turkey. To this, M. Venizelos protested in the name of Greece and also on behalf of the other allies. Finally Rechad ended the reading of his communication by proposing that Turkey and Bulgaria treat direct concerning Adrianople. M. Danef immediately declared it would be impossible to accept this proposition, saying "the Balkan states were united in bloc to obtain their independence, in bloc they conducted the war, and in bloc they intend to carry on the negotiations and conclude peace on all large or small questions that may arise."

Rechad then inquired whether the allies were ready to discuss peace on the basis of the Turkish proposals. Today, M. Venizelos replied that he desired Rechad to put in writing and deliver to the allies the text of his proposition, so they might return a written answer.

Thereupon the sitting was suspended. When it was again resumed Rechad complied with the request of M. Venizelos, and was given the written reply of the allies. This said the allies would maintain their original terms, but, for the sake of discussion, they would invite Rechad to present to the next sitting of the conference a map of the line proposed by Turkey marked out in the conference, with the frontier on it. The conference then adjourned until Friday.

Adrianople Bone of Contention.

Thus the bone of contention is Adrianople. The Bulgarians are ready to allow the Turks to retain in Adrianople the famous mosque of the Sultan Selim, the greatest masterpiece of Ottoman architecture. They also are willing that the Turks shall keep the Muradiye, which was built by Murad I.; the mosque of Murad IV. and the Bayard mosque, which are the main centers in Adrianople for Mohammedan worship.

There is an imperishable sentiment which makes the Turks crave for Adrianople, the earliest site conquered by Murad I. in 1361. This condition probably explains today's sudden yielding to the allies on other points. Turkey seemingly hopes by ceding almost all her territory to be allowed to retain the only point on which she insists. It is thought likely she also may be ready to cede her islands for the sake of seeing the green banner of the prophet still waving over "the jewel of the Orient," as Adrianople is called.

After the conference had adjourned today the allies held an informal meeting to discuss the situation.

ACTION OF THE CONFERENCE.
LONG STEP TOWARDS PEACE.
London, January 2.—The Times considers yesterday's meeting of the peace conference as a long step toward a settlement of the trouble between Turkey and the Balkan allies.

"The new year has begun well," it says, "and the prospect for peace, though it is some way off, is hopeful. There are many awkward questions to follow the territorial settlement, including arrangement between the allies themselves, which likely will prove hardly less difficult than the negotiations for peace."

The Times adds there is a confident expression that the ambassadorial conference which reassembles today also will reach a successful agreement. Some apprehensions are current with regard to Roumania, but the Times thinks it is not likely that the powers will permit their desire to be thwarted by any ambitious designs conceived in Bucharest.

MRS. LILIENTHAL DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. L. L. Lilienthal, widely known throughout the city as president of the Grandmothers' club, died Wednesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Gus Hoffman, 229 Washington street, after an illness of eight months. Mrs. Lilienthal, who was 59 years old, had lived in Atlanta about fifteen years. Her husband, prominent in business circles, died eleven years ago. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Hoffman, with whom she lived, she is survived by another daughter, Miss Fanny Lilienthal; one son, L. B. Lilienthal; one sister, Mrs. S. M. Glogauer, Brunswick, Ga.; and one brother, Simon Strauss, New York.

The interment will be in Oakland cemetery this morning, after the funeral services from the home, at 10:30 o'clock, when Rabbi David Marx will officiate.

The pallbearers will be Eugene Oberdorfer, Henry Hirsch, Marcus Loeb, Fred Kaufman, Ben Wisberg, J. M. Barnard, M. D. Blum and Morris Elsmann.

SIGMA NUS TO AID BUILD FRAT HOUSES

Chapters Must Bear Half of the Expense of the Structures.

The Sigma Nu convention, in session for the last three days, came to a close Wednesday afternoon, adjourning sine die and without the next meeting of the organization, but with the probability that "we'll all meet in Frisco, 1915."

A ball and smoker at the Capital City club last night ended the social features of the gathering, which was one of the most brilliant as well as one of the most successful ever held by the fraternity.

The chief business Wednesday was the debate on the question of chapter houses, when the general fraternity organization agreed to finance the building of homes to the extent of one-half of their cost, provided the chapters, through their alumni or their college, bear the expense of the other half.

The request of the Lafayette chapter, Easton, Pa., caused this decision, and it is likely that this branch will be the first to own their home in this way.

The remainder of the business sessions was taken up with routine matters and reports of committees.

A Georgia alumnus was highly honored by the fraternity on the resignation of Clarence E. Woods as vice president. Wayne B. Sewell, a graduate of Mercer, was elected to this office, which puts him in line for promotion to the head of the order, the highest honor in the gift of the fraternity.

Mr. Sewell lives near Newman, and for several years has been connected with the Alkalist Lyceum bureau of Atlanta.

S. P. Pegues, of Chicago, was elected grand treasurer.

The several hundred delegates and alumni will leave the city today for the return home. The active college men go direct to their schools for the beginning of the midwinter term.

GEORGE R. ELLIS BUYS AMERICUS NEWSPAPER.

Americus, Ga., January 1.—(Special.)—The ownership and management of The Americus Times-Recorder was today transferred to George R. Ellis, of Americus, who acquires the entire ownership of the property from Thomas Gamble, purchasing the property as an investment. Editor Gamble, under the new ownership, will concentrate his energies upon his trades publication, The Naval Stores Review.

Mr. Ellis is a prominent attorney of Americus, president of the board of trade and an active factor in the advancement and progress of Americus and Sumter county, in the rapid development of which he has absolute confidence. The paper entered upon its thirty-fifth year today. The Times-Recorder was bought six years ago by Thomas Gamble from Mrs. Marie Louise Myrick, who had succeeded her husband, Colonel Bascom Myrick, in the ownership and control of the paper.

During the past six years an entirely new plant of modern type has been installed, the enlarged daily from a four-page to an eight-page paper and the weekly made a twelve-page paper. Under the new ownership W. L. Dupree will continue as business manager with Frank Long and J. W. Purdie in the editorial and local staff. Mr. Furlow having been with the paper for twenty years. There will be no changes in the mechanical department.

Andrew J. Bowen.

Andrew J. Bowen, aged 81 years, died at McPherson's, Ga., Wednesday morning. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Plonie Bowen and Mrs. L. F. Millican, and by four sons, W. B. C. J. W. R. and C. E. Bowen, who live in Atlanta. The high will be brought to Atlanta and funeral services held at 136 Clay street, where he formerly lived, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The body will then be taken to Douglasville for interment. Mr. Bowen was a Confederate veteran, having fought in the Thirtieth Georgia regiment.

$244,492 ASKED FOR CITY PARKS

Commissioners Will Ask Council to Be Liberal With Department.

The park board will submit to the finance committee of council an estimate of $244,492.40 with which to operate during the year 1913.

The original estimate prepared by General Manager Den Carey totaled $249,242.40.

At the meeting of the board Wednesday afternoon the board proposed a change in the estimate of the salary of the general manager from $2,500 to $2,750, making the total for general administrative purposes $5,050 instead of $4,800. The board cut down the estimate for small parks from $18,900 to $14,900. The balance of the appropriation estimated by the general manager was allowed to remain.

Ask Council to Be Liberal.
Members of the commission backed up Chairman J. O. Cochran in his suggestion that a concerted effort be made to influence council and the finance committee to be liberal with Atlanta's park system.

The report of the general manager showed a total of 23 parks with a property valuation based on assessments of $1,402,967.14.

President Cochran, referring to the value placed on Atlanta's parks, said that if sold the property would bring more than $2,000,000 to the city.

Extensive developments are shown in the report. Grant park, Piedmont, Mims, Oakland City and Joyner park, came in for a large share of the money spent for improvements.

The parks cost the city, during 1912, $5,437.46 less than the previous year. The park board spent $61,055.24 in 1912.

One striking feature of the report is the fact that nearly 33,000 persons visited the cyclorama during the year, paying 10 cents each, and netting the city $3,311.10. Out of the cyclorama profit the board paid salaries amounting to $1,537, and deposited a net profit of $2,674.10.

Park privileges for the year amounted to $6,070, and miscellaneous receipts were $2,407.44.

Among some of the most important recommendations in the report of the general manager is that a suitable building be provided to protect the $100,000 "Battle of Atlanta" painting in the cyclorama.

Improve Lakewood.

The report urges improvement of Lakewood park. It also calls attention to the need of maintaining the forestry department to take care of the trees of the city. The work of Miss Mary Barnwell, playground director, is lauded in the report, and a plan is made to carry out the recommendations of President Cochran for more small neighborhood parks.

The report urges council to permit the department to start a large nursery in the Robert P. Maddox park, and calls attention to the fact that in 1912, $16,000 worth of shrubs were grown in Grant park, and $1,000 in a smaller park, and explains that a nursery would be a benefit to the department from a commercial standpoint.

The board adopted the report and authorized an expenditure of $50 to have it put in printed book form along with the report of President Cochran.

COL. J. VAN HOLT NASH NOW ADJUTANT GENERAL

By the recent appointment of Governor Brown, Colonel Joseph Van Holt Nash becomes today the adjutant general of Georgia, and General William G. Obar retires from that office.

Friends of General Obar are urging that he accept the office of quartermaster general, which has been tendered him by Governor Brown. They feel that the retirement of so faithful and efficient a man as General Obar from the military department of the state would be an irreparable loss. General Obar, however, has announced no decision as to what he will do about the office, but his announcement is expected today.

SIMPLE INAUGURAL WANTED BY WILSON

He Would Like to Go Afoot Between the White House and the Capitol.

Princeton, N. J., January 1.—Governor Woodrow Wilson intimated tonight that if it were possible he would like to go afoot between the white house and capitol when he takes the oath of office as president of the United States. He remarked, however, that the crowds would make it impossible. Jeffersonian simplicity, the kind that the president-elect would like to emulate, however, he remarked, consisted not of a horseback ride, as some historians have chronicled it, but merely an unostentatious walk down Pennsylvania avenue in the company of a few citizens.

"The story that Jefferson rode on horseback to the capitol and hitched his horse to a post while he went in to take the oath of office isn't true," said the governor.

He was told that Governor Sulzer had walked to the capitol at Albany. Mr. Wilson spoke approvingly of this.

He asked if it would make any plans for his own inauguration in this connection.

"I hadn't thought out the method at all," he said. "I have simply satisfied myself with impressing the general impression on the inauguration committee with the desire to have the inauguration as simple as possible."

The president-elect was questioned as to whether he thought it would be an added convenience to members of congress to know he would soon after the closing of the present session of congress they would have to reassemble for an extra session. He indicated that one of the very first acts of his administration would be to announce the date of the new session.

Congress will be in session until March 4, anyway," he said, "and there will not be much of an interval between that day and the extra session."

The president-elect said it is expected will go to Washington March 3, spending the night at a hotel near the white house.

The governor took a long walk early today. It was his first since he became ill, and marked his return to normal health. He wore no overcoat, but put on a heavy sweater and trudged through the mud vigorously.

Many cablegrams and telegrams from friends came wishing the Wilsons a "Happy New Year." Jacob Gould Schurman, United States minister to Greece, cabled his greetings from Athens.

SULZER BREAKS ALL PRECEDENTS

He Takes Oath Without Usual Pomp Marking New York Inauguration.

Albany, N. Y., January 1.—Precedents of years' standing were ignored and others created today during the inauguration of William Sulzer as democratic governor of the Empire State.

At the pomp and display usually incident to such occasions were lacking; this at the governor's own request. There was no military demonstration; no governor's salute of 19 guns; no parade; nothing to feature the induction into office of the state's chief executive, except a notable gathering of prominent people and the carrying out of the procedure provided by the constitution.

The new governor insisted upon walking from the executive mansion to the capitol, refusing to ride in a carriage which had been provided. After the ceremonies he inaugurated a new feature by appearing on the front steps of the capitol and addressing the thousands who were unable to witness the ceremonies inside.

Governor Sulzer took the constitutional oath of office in the lavishly decorated assembly chamber.

In his inaugural address the new executive pledged "an honest and efficient and business-like administration, and was greeted with prolonged applause when he said:

"The people know that an ounce of performance is worth a ton of promise, and they will judge my administration not by what I say now, but by what I do hereafter."

The popular election of United States senators was the principal recommendation made by Governor Sulzer in his first annual message to the legislature, which convened tonight.

"The people can and ought to be trusted," said the governor. "In my opinion the people of our state are in favor of the election of United States senators by a direct vote. I favor this change in the federal constitution as I shall every other change that will restore the government to the control of the people."

The governor also asked the legislature to consider reducing the high cost of living and recommended submission of an amendment for women suffrage to the people "as soon as possible."

Members of the progressive party attempted to amend the rules in both houses so as to do away with executive sessions of committees, but without success.

HORACE STRINGFELLOW MARRIES MISS MAUNEY

Miss Virginia Mauney and Mr. Horace Stringfellow were married Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 565 Ponce de Leon avenue. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. W. Memminger.

The wedding of Miss Mauney was announced for January 15 and was looked forward to with great interest by her friends, but owing to the bride's sudden illness and contemplated operation, it was decided to have the ceremony quietly performed at once.

CHURCH WATCH MEETING BROKEN UP BY ROWDIES

Cincinnati, January 1.—A trio of drunken rowdies armed with revolvers, invaded Corpus Christi church at Newport, Ky., early today and caused a small panic among several hundred worshippers. The congregation started to stampede, but was halted by the reassuring voice of the pastor. The men in the congregation surrounded the ruffians and, after a hard fight, disarmed them.

Carroll goes to Washington.—M. C. Carroll, Jr., prominent Atlanta business man, was called to Washington yesterday to attend the funeral of his brother, who died Wednesday in Baltimore.

CLAYTON MAKES REPORT FOR 1912

Chief of Construction Tells of the Work of His Department.

The report of Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of the construction department, for the year 1912 is complete and ready to go to council.

The report sets forth that during the year the department supervised the paving of 13.67 miles of streets, 34.13 miles of sewers and 51.97 miles of sidewalks.

The report calls attention to the number of rainy days during the past year, also calls attention to the work done by the department despite the weather handicap.

Clayton's Recommendations.
Chief Clayton makes these recommendations for his department:

An appropriation to employ inspectors on every paving job and suggests that the city provide for charging up the salaries of each inspector to the paving jobs they are detailed to inspect.

Authority to employ inspectors for sidewalks, tile factories and similar duties.

That sewer contracts be let in small sections of a few miles after the surveys and grades have been established.

Chief Clayton believes that under this method the city will get the benefit of keener competition from the contractors, as it will induce more to seek contracts.

Extension of the lateral sewer system.

Use of prisoners to make repairs on streets and not use prison force to lay pavements.

An appropriation for a testing apparatus to determine the quality of asphalt and paving materials.

The report calls attention to the efficiency shown by the tests of the Proctor creek disposal plant.

Does Not Agree With Sands.
Referring to that section of the report of Herbert R. Sands, municipal expert, recommending that the disposal plants be placed under the control of the sanitary department, Chief Clayton says:

"I do not think this will be advisable, on account of the fact that this is a new process and the Proctor creek plant is the first plant to be put in operation, and the construction in some of the minor details of the two plants not yet completed may be varied to conform to the experience we gain in the operation of this plant, and I consider it very necessary that the operation of these plants be carefully watched by engineering as well as bacterial employees."

The report closes with thanks to members of council who defended the construction department against what Captain Clayton characterizes as "underhand attacks."

LOWENSTEIN TO STUDY NORTHERN FENDER LAWS

W. J. Lowenstein, chairman of the chamber of commerce committee on public safety, has just started on a business trip through the north on which he will visit New York, Chicago and Cincinnati. In each of these cities he will make a special investigation of the use of street car fenders and the municipal laws relating thereto.

The committee recently took up the investigation of the system of fenders in use on Atlanta street cars, following the death of a five-year-old child under a car on Grant street two weeks ago. If possible, Mr. Lowenstein will return by way of Washington city, in order to get some pointers on the excellent street car system in practice there.

Mrs. B. F. Badgett.

Mrs. B. F. Badgett, mother of Mrs. Badgett, the violin maker, passed away Wednesday morning at her home in Knoxville, Tenn. She was 68 years old and had been ill some time. She was known to many people in Atlanta, where she had visited her son, and also her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Powers. The funeral will occur in Knoxville. ADD MORE—

Indeed, Thirteen Is a Lucky Number. No Other Year Has Ever Brought Such a January Sale of Undermuslins

As This One That Starts This Morning. Many Causes Have Contributed to Make It Great

It sounds hackneyed to say that we have never held such a January Sale of Undermuslins as this one we invite you to attend today. But that is a very simple way of telling you the truth about this occasion.

From year to year we have succeeded in holding the January Sale of Undermuslins that set the mark for that year. Our best efforts of the past, then, have been our incentive this year. And we know we have been successful in gathering greater values for this sale than for any former sale.

But these are generalities—we take it that women are interested in the particulars, in the whys and the wherefores of a trade movement that brings such savings as this one surely will.

So we will tell you just how a sale of these proportions has been arranged.

Primarily, it is a matter of co-operation possible at this season only. By the calendar January would be a very dull month for undermuslins, dull for us, dull for makers. If we can create an outlet for undermuslins in January, we will be helping the makers. So they in turn—we mean those makers from whom we buy regularly—help us and you with price concessions that they could not think of making when the busy season is on them.

There is the first saving—undermuslins cost us less in January than at any other time. We can afford to skimp profits on each garment right now, if by so doing we can raise the volume of business done in a few days to that which ordinarily would come in a month, for in retailing time is actually money.

There is the second saving—we share our profits with you to induce January buying.

Ordinarily, these are the main factors of the savings of our January Sales of Undermuslins—and they have been so potent in former years, women have seen that they were so real that our Sales have always been received with a warm welcome.

But this year more is to be said—another force has brought down prices. We have bought the

Sample Line of One of the Best Makers of Undermuslins in America

These have gone into the January Sale at the exact New York cost.

So when we say that this Sale brings to the women of Atlanta greater values than any former January Sale, we are telling you only what we know.

But the Undermuslins themselves—the cold facts of the merchandising end of the Sale will be warmed by the appreciation of women. They are, in a word, beautiful.

New as the year, snowy white, exquisitely fashioned, of materials that your fingers and your eyes will not allow you to doubt; neatly trimmed with laces that will wash and wear, with embroideries of fine, evenly woven patterns. Undermuslins that the heart of all femininity joys in. Their charm is not to be told of here—but you who are wise are going to see for yourself just what their charm consists of.

We promise you more beautiful undermuslins than Atlanta has ever known.

We promise you greater values—savings never less than one-fourth—more often one-third—now and then as much as one-half.

And this not only on the less expensive garments, but on those fine skirts, combinations, gowns and drawers that go to make trousseaux.

Let Your Curiosity Get the Better of You Today. See What These Prices Stand For

In the midst of our pride of ownership comes the thought—if we could always offer our public such values as these! But it seems that is the impossible. Today is the hay-making day.

Drawers

At 19c Made of soft finished cambric, five-inch tucked flounce, hemstitched hem. These are our famous 25c quality.

At 25c Made of soft finished cambric. We ask you to compare them with the best you have ever bought—in any sale—at 25c.

At 39c Made of a good quality nainsook. Five styles, some with lace, others with embroidery trimming; circular and plain. They are 50c drawers.

At 69c These are our regular stock. They are reduced for this occasion from 95c and $1.50. Some twelve styles, lace and embroidery trimmed, to choose from.

Corset Covers

At 19c Corset Covers at 19c that have fly fronts. You would hardly think it possible. Made of soft cambric; regularly 25c.

At 25c Setting a new mark of value certainly for this price. Good cambric, seams all neatly done, buttons all white pearl. Fly fronts.

At 39c Of nainsook, trimmed to the depth of five inches, with laces and embroidery trimmed front. Slip-over style.

At 50c There are twenty-five styles to choose from. Linen and Valenciennes laces and embroidery trimmings, with ribbons. Fly fronts.

Petticoats

At 98c At $1.98, at $2.98. You will buy them quickly. We did.

Their beauty is a matter of beautiful laces, linen, Valenciennes, shadow—and of embroideries that you are used to associate with baby sets, so fine of pattern and weave are they. No need to tell those who see them they are worth one-fourth and one-third more than these prices.

Gowns

At 50c full length and full width, of material that you could hardly buy for 50c. Scalloped neck and sleeves, lace or embroidery trimmed front. Slip-over style.

At 79c worth $1.00 by every way of reckoning worth; square and round, with slip-over styles, short sleeves, trimmed variously with laces and embroideries.

At 95c truly wonderful garments of fine, sheer nainsook—round, square and pointed slip-over styles, with lace and embroidery medallions, edges and insertion—but altogether too many styles to mention any one, two or half dozen.

At $1.98 nainsook, whole front almost to waist line, trimmed with wide bands of St. Gall embroidery combined with ribbons, Cluny, Valenciennes and shadow laces. Others at $2.98 that have every mark that makes gowns worth $3.50 and $4.00.

At $3.98 They are $5.00 gowns. You see it in the sheer, soft nainsook, in the elaborate uses of laces of the finer sorts, of exquisite embroidery medallions, all combined with huge, flat ribbon bows. Those who are making up trousseaux will hardly think of paying more for gowns.

Combinations

Consisting of Corset Cover and Drawers.

At 79c Their worth is evident not only in the materials used, but in the neat way they are made. Lace edged.

At 95c soft nainsook, trimmed with Valenciennes and linen laces and Swiss insertions. Some ten styles—circular or plain legs.

At $1.39 and at $1.69, the corset covers show exquisite Cluny laces and fine ribbons. Beautiful garments. Circular and tight drawers.

Princess Slips

At 95c nainsook, yokes of Valenciennes lace and Swiss embroidery, neck and arm-eyes finished with dainty lace and embroidery, wide embroidery flounce finished with lace.

At $1.50 one style and another of sheer but strong nainsook. All of them are tailored slips with flat felled seams. You are going to like them and buy them.

At $1.98 and $2.19. Fifteen styles, made pretty in more than fifteen ways, with laces, embroideries and ribbons. Choose from those with or without the under flounce. The seams are all flat felled. They are tailored in a way that means even, snug fit.

About the Sample Line of Undermuslins at New York Cost

The "piece de resistance" of the whole sale—that sets it far and away ahead of any sale of undermuslins this season will bring. The maker that these are from is the one we buy our better grades of undermuslins from regularly—for the fact that he makes them better than any other we have yet found. These qualities are in the materials he uses, in the fashioning and fit of his garments, in the always neat, exquisite use of laces, embroidery and ribbon trimmings, in the fact that he reproduces the French novelties first—and better than any other maker.

Included are

Combinations, Petticoats, Gowns, Drawers, Princess Slips and Corset Covers in Nainsook, Crepe de Chine and Wash Silk

Those of crepe de chine and wash silk are in pink and light blue, as well as in white. We have them to sell at actual cost—every piece is marked with the maker's original ticket.

The range of prices goes from $1.00 to $15.00.

Corsets Join the Sale

And add their quota of savings—in this fashion:

79c FOR $1.00 CORSETS.

Of coutil with guaranteed steels, long over hips, medium high bust, tape finished.

$1.49 FOR $2.00 CORSETS.

Of coutil, medium bust, with great length over hips, splendidly boned. Four hose supporters.

$1.98 FOR $3.50 CORSETS.

Brocade, in pink and white, medium bust, long hip. Six hose supporters.

$1.98 FOR $3.50 AND $4.00 NEMO CORSETS.

These are the models that the Nemo people advertise for the stout figure. They are splendid corsets, sturdy, well-boned, with abdominal support.

$3.00 FOR $12.00 AND $15.00 CORSETS.

Brocade. The materials and boning are of the highest grades—but they are not models that we will re-order—and so they go to those who do not favor the very low bust and the very long skirt.

Brassieres

$1.00 Brassieres are 75c
50c Brassieres are 39c
50c Brassieres, that are soiled somewhat, are 19c

One Table of Soiled Undermuslins

Arranged on one table are odd surpluses that have been soiled. These prices tell you that those here early will not leave many. Drawers that were $1.50 are 69c. Combinations that were $1.50 and $2.00 are 50c. Gowns that were $1.49 and $2.00 are 95c. Gowns that were $1.00 are 50c.

CAPTAIN CLAYTON DEFENDS PAVEMENT

Chief of Construction Writes About Material Used on Peachtree Street.

A test was made of the repair asphalt before it was used on Peachtree or any other thoroughfare, according to a statement made by Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of Atlanta's construction department, yesterday. He calls attention to a report by W. P. Heath, secretary of the Pratt laboratory, which was favorable.

Captain Clayton denies that the city is putting down material refused by the county, and says that the county commissioners have let a contract for the same sort of material for Georgia avenue, and that the city has paved a part of Piedmont avenue with it. Captain Clayton defends the material by stating that it is the equal of any asphalt mac dam used in the city.

Referring to the disintegration of the pavement in front of the Capital City club, Captain Clayton declares the defect to be due to the faulty foundations.

He says that the analysis submitted by the Pratt laboratory shows that there is very little difference between the Texas and Standard materials, but that both are superior to the Trinidad in mineral qualities.

Captain Clayton's Defense.

Captain Clayton has written the following in defense of his selection:

"Editor Constitution: I notice in this morning's paper a sensational article, 'County Refuses Material, But the City Thought It Good Enough for Peachtree Street,' in which the construction department of the city is criticized for accepting the bid of the Standard Oil company for furnishing asphalt to be used in repairs of streets during 1912. About the last of February, 1912, advertisements were inserted in the paper calling for bids for asphalt to be used on street repairs during 1912. Samples of material to be submitted with the bids. When these bids were received the samples were turned over to the Pratt laboratory, of this city, for analysis. A copy of the analysis and the letter of the Pratt laboratory is hereto attached, showing that the city exercised due diligence in the acceptance of this material. We have been using this same material ever since March for making all the repairs on the asphalt and bituminous streets and it has proven very satisfactory. We have paved quite a large area on Piedmont avenue with asphalt mac dam made of this material, which is the equal of any in the city, a sample of which can be seen in this office if it can be seen on the street.

"As I stated to your reporter when he came to see me about the Peachtree street work, the trouble was caused by a defect in the foundation, and Captain Donaldson, in addition, says that during the progress of the work that he was troubled with water from the sanitary department rendering the street very muddy that it was almost impossible to do the work, but on account of the great demand to have the street opened, it was necessary to push it through as rapidly as possible.

"Did Not Refuse Material. An examination of the records of Fulton county will show that the article headed in this morning's paper is not true, as the county has not refused the material, but has entered into a contract with the Standard Oil company for the asphalt for the paving of Georgia avenue, approximately 60,000 square yards, and also for the paving of Peachtree street. The bid in the mixed method similar to that which is laid on Peachtree street.

"The analysis submitted by the Pratt laboratory shows the Texas asphalt, the Standard asphalt and the Trinidad asphalt, and an examination will show that, so far as the Texas and the Standard is concerned, there is very little difference in the quality, but much greater advantage in mineral matter than the Trinidad asphalt.

"In constructing an asphalt street or a bituminous street of any kind, it is very rarely done so that some parts of it will be put in in such a manner as to make it necessary to have it taken up and replaced. As an illustration of this fact, the pavement that

FIRST 1913 NEWS ALL TO THE GOOD

Constitution Receives First Message Concerning New Parcels Post Law.

Good news was the song of the wires yesterday morning in the first telegraph message flashed into Atlanta and out to the country, news of individual well being and presage of prosperity for Atlanta manufacturers.

Over the Postal Telegraph wires there came in almost at the same minute two messages concerning 723 Atlanta-made goods, from representatives, saying that large contracts had just been secured over competition with the factories of other places.

The first message sent out was from a lady to relatives, reading: "Letter received. See special delivery letter. I am O. K."

For obvious reasons the names are not given.

The first message delivered in the city was from the Western Union Telegraph company to The Constitution, addressed to Clark Howell, editor, and concerning a test of the new parcels post law which went into effect at just the same time the message came in.

It was from The Chicago Tribune, and read: "We are sending you tonight two packages, one by parcels post and one by express, placed simultaneously in the postoffice and the express office, our object being to see which is the most speedy method of delivery. Will you telegraph The Tribune immediately on receipt of each package?"

TAX VALUES OF ATLANTA SHOW $19,725,996 GAIN

The final figures compiled by the tax collectors show Atlanta's actual taxable values for 1912 to be $19,725,996. The total values at the close of the year 1911 amounted to $13,510,491. The gain of 1912 over the previous year is therefore $6,215,505, and many thousands the largest gain in the history of the city.

According to expressions of careful statisticians, next year's gain is not expected to go over $10,000,000.

Further figures compiled by the assessors show that the city collected $2,070,618 from all sources during the year.

In 1911 the total amount collected from all sources aggregated $1,809,019. The gain for 1912 over the preceding year was $261,599.

SCHOOL BELLS TO RING AGAIN THIS MORNING

The school bells will ring this morning at 8:30 o'clock after a silence of twelve days, the holidays will be over, the gifts of Santa Claus laid aside for school books and the hum-drum of the school take the place of merry-making.

Twenty-five thousand children will flock to the schoolhouses, and 600 teachers meet them with not another holiday in sight until the birthday of the father of his country is heralded on February 22.

It will take some two days for the children to get their minds out of toys and on books, and it will be about next Monday before the school routine curriculum renews its full sway.

is now being laid by the county on Marietta street, in which the Trinidad asphalt is used, and the bureau of the company has an inspector of their own there has been several cuts made and the material removed and replaced with other material. This trouble arises sometimes from a lack of proper foundation, and at other times from a lack of proper mixture of the combinations of materials, and other times from overheating materials, and can only be determined after it has been put down.

"Hoping that you will give this matter the same publicity you have the paving of Peachtree street, and publish in connection therewith the letter of the Pratt laboratory and the analysis of the analysis, remain, yours very truly,

R. M. CLAYTON,
Chief of Construction."

Report of Analytical Chemist. A copy of the report of the analytical chemist of the Pratt laboratory was submitted by Captain Clayton in defense of his contention. The report says that no penetration test at different temperatures was made, because the laboratory was not equipped with a penetrometer. The melting test, which gives an idea as to the relative consistency of the materials at higher temperatures, was made.

NOBODY WORKED BUT JOCKO ON NEW YEAR'S; EVERYBODY ELSE IN CITY ENJOYED HOLIDAY

Jocko making money for his master. He put in a hard day's work on New Year's.

Here is Hon. Jocko Giuseppe Anapolos, traveler and business man! He has seen much of the world, and is frankly out to "mak-a-da-mon". His weather-beaten visage has been fanned by the spicy breezes of central Africa and the hot breath of the Sahara, and he knows the garlic smells and quaint melodies of Naples and a hundred Mediterranean ports.

It is not strange, then, that he should find himself quite at home in Atlanta. Not strange to say, either, he has caught the Atlanta Spirit, and on New Year's day, when he had his picture made, he was the one busy citizen in the city. While everyone else fared him forth for a holiday, Sir Jocko was industriously hustling for business. He merely paused long enough to favor the press with his latest photograph.

He didn't understand exactly why the box that the photographer held should not make the same beautiful music as that of his master, and he is seen in the picture busily trying to solve the mystery. Jocko went so far as to climb upon the photographer's shoulder and peer into the eyepiece of the camera, but he never told anybody what he saw!

CONGRESS MILL BEGINS TO GRIND

again soon after it reconvenes, and a majority of senators express the opinion that a solution will be found that will allow at least some of the appointments to be acted on.

The democrats have successfully prevented confirmation of all but one or two appointments made since December 2.

Senator Martin, who is also chairman of the committee appointed at the recent democratic caucus to take up the appointment fight, said today he would call the committee together within a few days to formulate a plan of democratic action. As a rule, democratic senators express the opinion that comparatively few of the president's appointments should receive confirmation, but there are appreciable breaks in the ranks. A growing number of democrats favor a "discriminatory system" that would permit confirmation of many of the appointments now before the senate.

The industrial commission. A fight is being directed against the new industrial commission, the nine members of which were appointed a few weeks ago by President Taft. Although "senatorial courtesy" would ordinarily bring about the speedy confirmation of Senator Sutherland's appointment as chairman, democratic leaders are fighting all the appointments, on the ground that the new commission's investigation of industrial conditions will run through two or three years of President Wilson's term.

Should President Taft send in the appointment of Colonel George W. Goethals as governor of the Panama canal zone under the new law, it will undoubtedly also meet with democratic opposition. Many prominent democrats favor the selection of Colonel Goethals, however, and will work for his confirmation.

Many members of both houses had not returned to Washington tonight from their holiday journeys, and there will be numerous empty seats when the senate and house meet tomorrow. Chief interest in the senate on the opening day is expected to center about Senator Bailey's speech against the Initiative and referendum, a speech that is considered his farewell to the senate.

D. B. CARSON PROMOTED TO ASSISTANT MANAGER

D. B. Carson, well known in Atlanta railroad circles, has been made assistant general manager of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad. Mr. Carson has held the position of freight agent for the road for the past fourteen years, with headquarters in this city. He leaves at once for St. Louis, Mo., his new headquarters, although he expects to be in Atlanta quite often in pursuit of his executive duties.

Mr. Carson will be the right-hand man to J. W. Thomas, Jr., president and general manager of the road, the position of assistant general manager being practically that of vice president. Mr. Carson and Mr. Thomas have been warm personal friends for years. In his work in Atlanta Mr. Carson has not been confined to the duties of local agent, but has exercised general supervision over this territory.

Mr. Carson will be succeeded as freight agent in Atlanta by William S. Richardson, who has been with the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis for about nineteen years.

The announcement was also made Wednesday of the appointment of E. M. Wrenn, of Nashville, to the position of assistant superintendent of the road.

FINE VAUDEVILLE SHOW AT THE FEDERAL PRISON

The inmates of the federal prison were entertained on New Year's day with a vaudeville show, the excellent performance did much to make the advent of 1913 pleasant to those whom prison bars kept from enjoying freedom and sunshine.

The following vaudeville stars, who are at the Grand this week, took part in the prison performance: Alf Grant, Frank Mullane, John Murray, Joseph Eagle, Frank Cortese, Joseph Russo, John Curcio, George M. George, and Miss Ethel Hoag.

The actors were at their best, and the generous applause showed the keen appreciation of the audience.

DAN CAREY KEEPS JOB AS MANAGER

sion of Mr. Young had been vacated by him when he failed to attend meetings. The board decided that Young's seat was vacant.

"I have nothing to say, although I am sure counsel will sustain me," declared Commissioner Young at the close of the meeting. "I was absent from the city in November and sick in bed in December. I so notified the board. My letter is in the hands of Manager Carey."

Commissioner Brannan suggested a resolution to council explaining that the park board had excused Commissioner Young. This was adopted after Mayor Winn declared that he favored such action. Commissioner Wilby declared that he spoke to Alderman John E. McClelland, author of the Young ouster resolution, and was informed that it would not be introduced in council.

No intention of resigning. Commissioner Young said that he had no intention of resigning his position of the "split" in the board. He intimated that he believed there was a prospect of a rapprochement between the disgruntled commissioners.

He stands in the position, however, of being a commissioner in name only. It is up to council to say whether his commission became void by reason of his failure to attend the two meetings in question or to send his excuse to the board.

The clash between "sides" in the park board followed closely upon the announcement of Alderman John E. McClelland that he was going to ask council to oust Commissioner Young for dereliction. Then came the charge by Chairman J. O. Cochran that he had been asked to join a scheme to abolish the office of General Manager Carey.

Put Chairman in Charge.

The plan, according to President Cochran, was to place the chairman in charge of the management of Atlanta's park system, and to attach a salary to the position. President Cochran not only declined to consider the proposition, but immediately set about to shield Manager Carey. Commissioner Young, it is understood, declared that he would try and carry out the plan even after he was threatened with removal.

Commissioners Wilby and Burnett were in sympathy with the plan to oust Manager Carey. They refused to cast a vote after Carey's name was declared to be the only one before the commission to consider.

City Attorney Mayson was emphatic in his position that under the code Commissioner Young had forfeited his seat as a member, but explained that if the board so saw fit it could offer a resolution to council urging that the derelict commissioner be excused.

"It will be rather late, but will serve its purpose," said Mr. Mayson.

Woodward to Fight Young.

Mayor-elect Woodward is said to be determined to remove Commissioner Young from the board. The fight in council is therefore expected to be a trifle warmer than the fight before the park board.

President Cochran, who has openly declared himself as opposed to Commissioner Young in his stand against Manager Carey, presided while the mayor and city attorney crossed each other with legal opinions. His rulings were regarded as absolutely fair and unbiased.

"I was forced to take the position I did because of the rulings of the city attorney," he explained.

City Attorney Mayson said that he drew the ordinance at the request of council, and that he interpreted it as intending to force members of board to attend meetings. He said that it is self-acting; that is, when a member violates it he forfeits his commission.

BODY OF JUDGE HALL CARRIED TO GRIFFIN

Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special.)—The body of the late Judge John I. Hall, who died here shortly after the dawn of the new year, was taken to Griffin this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and the funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. C. Murray. The body was accompanied by an escort from the Macon Bar Association and a large number of the friends of the family. Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, will officiate at the funeral service.

CAROLINAS SHAKE AS EARTH ROCKS

Sharp Seismic Jars at Spartanburg, Greenville, Charlotte and Other Points.

Spartanburg, S. C., January 1.—An earthquake of sufficient violence to cause a number of chimneys to topple over was felt throughout the Piedmont section of South Carolina at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The trembling of the earth continued for five or six seconds and caused people to run out of their houses in alarm. In the open country a low rumbling noise was heard.

Reports of the earthquake have been received here tonight from many places within a radius of 100 miles in all directions. The shock does not seem to have been distinctly felt at points more distant.

In Union county the shock caused large cracks to form in the old county jail, while plastering fell in many residences. Many chimneys fell down at West Springs.

At Chester the shock caused a linotype machine to slide a short distance across the floor of a printing office. A second shock was felt there at 2 o'clock.

Tremors at Greenville.

Greenville, S. C., January 1.—Earth tremors were distinctly felt here this afternoon at 1:27 o'clock. The shock also was reported in the country surrounding Greenville.

Violent at Union.

Union, S. C., January 1.—A violent earthquake passed over this county at 1:28 this afternoon. Chimneys were toppled over throughout the city, and a large rent was made in the walls of the county jail. The structure is built of stone and was erected in 1823. The lasted about twenty seconds.

Greensboro Felt Shock.

Greensboro, N. C., January 1.—An earthquake shock was distinctly felt here this afternoon about 1:30 o'clock by a number of people. The tremor was sufficient to rattle windows, shake beds, rock chairs, etc. Old inhabitants declared how at the time of the Charleston earthquake say it reminded them of that occurrence. There was no damage.

Slight Tremor at Charlotte.

Charlotte, N. C., January 1.—A slight tremor of the earth was felt at Charlotte this afternoon at 1:28 o'clock, but no damage was done. Advice from points in the Piedmont and Mountain sections of the state show the shock to be general. At Kings Mountain a chimney was shaken down. Asheville, Gastonia, Davidson, Statesville and other points report the shock, but no damage. At Gaffney, S. C., buildings were shaken and the shock was felt more severely at Blacksburg, S. C., than in this state.

Asheville Shaken.

Asheville, N. C., January 1.—A slight but distinct earthquake shock was felt in Asheville about 1:30 o'clock today. The shock being of sufficient violence to rattle windows, shake beds, and dishes. No damage was done. Similar shocks were reported from several of the western North Carolina towns immediately surrounding Asheville.

WILMER MOORE WILL ENTERTAIN DIRECTORS

Directors of the chamber of commerce will be entertained at a dinner by Wilmer L. Moore, president of the body, Friday evening, at the Capital City club. Plans are made for a general discussion of the six or seven projects deemed most important at this time to the city of Atlanta.

The dinner is expected to develop many interesting projects in the suggestions of the directors, and the discussion will probably result in a definite program of work for the next twelve months. The recently-elected directors will be guests of honor. They are Lynn Fort, Jacob Patterson, T. K. Glenn, Colonel W. L. Peel and John Morris, Jr.

PARSON ACCUSED OF RUINING GIRLS

Rev. Hoffman Fled From Florida and Is Arrested in Kentucky.

Owensboro, Ky., January 1.—Rev. Henry C. Hoffman, formerly a Methodist minister and head of an orphan home at Deland, Fla., is under arrest here charged with criminally assaulting an 18-year-old girl, an inmate of the institution. The warrant for his arrest was mailed from Deland, Fla., in the open country a low rumbling noise was heard.

Since coming to Owensboro he has organized a band of holy rollers. Hoffman said he would return to Florida without requisition papers, if declared he was innocent and that the charges were the result of spite work. Deland, Fla., January 1.—Henry C. Hoffman, arrested today at Owensboro, Ky., is charged with criminal assault upon a 10-year-old white girl inmate of the orphanage at Enterprize, Fla. He is also charged by three other girls of the institution, ranging in age from 14 to 16 years, of having illicit intercourse with them. The rumors of illicit relations with the children became general and he was discharged by the trustees of the institution. It was later reported he had gone to Germany. The man is well connected in this state.

Taft Leases New Haven Home.

New Haven, Conn., January 1.—It was announced here today that President Taft has leased the Parmelee mansion here for a term of two years with the privilege of extension. The president is expected to take up his residence here soon after leaving the white house.

RINGWORM AROUND EDGE OF HAIR

Itched and Burned. Scratched and Made Sores. Hair Came Out by Combs. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

R. F. D. No. 4, Hones Path, S. C.—"Cuticura Soap and Ointment have done so much for me I would like other sufferers to try them. Last spring I had a very severe case of ringworm. It began in a ring around the edge of my hair. It looked like little pimples, and itched and burned so much and when I scratched it, it made sores. My hair came out by the combs. I lost fully one third of it. It kept getting worse so I could scarcely rest at night, it would itch and burn so badly.

"I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap, washed my head good in warm water and Cuticura Soap, rubbed the scalp good with Cuticura Ointment, let it stay on all night and washed it off the next morning with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card 'Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston.'"

"Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalp, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card 'Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston.'"

Softer-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

GRADY PAID WARDS BRING BIG PROFIT

Dr. W. B. Summerall's Report Makes Splendid Showing for Hospital.

The total income of Grady hospital in 1912, shown in the report Dr. W. B. Summerall, superintendent, has submitted to council, was $7,508.15.

During the first six months of the year the income was $3,440.11, and in the last six months, during the time the new hospital annex was put to use, the income was $6,060.04. The income was derived solely from the pay wards which were installed in the new Grady hospital at a cost of $10,000, or about one-tenth of the whole cost of the building.

The income from the rental of the wards will be sufficient to pay the interest on the hospital bonds, and put into the sinking fund an amount sufficient to redeem the bond issue before it is due.

Hospital Showing Praised.

The splendid showing of the hospital during the year under the management of Dr. Summerall has been favorably commented on by city officials. The fact that there are but twelve private wards, and that the income per month was a little more than $1,000, makes it possible for council and the finance committee to be generous to the hospital in the matter of providing for many urgent needs which Dr. Summerall deems it necessary to make the hospital the finest in the south.

The hospital cost the city exactly $85,584.03 during the year. The receipts amounting to $7,508.15 deducted brings down the net cost to $78,075.88.

There were 3,354 patients treated during the year in the hospital, and 21,916 in the clinics. The number of walking patients was 8,592. The ambulance made 4,092 emergency calls, covering more than 13,000 miles, and established a record unprecedented by any other similar institution.

Much Needed Improvement.

There is still much in the way of improvements needed at the hospital. The nurses' quarters are crowded and inadequate. The hospital has only twenty-eight nurses, whereas sixty are needed. The report calls attention to the fact that a dormitory building for nurses is needed, and council is urged to make provision to supply this need.

Dr. Summerall calls attention to the fact that it is impossible to get the money through taxation, and suggests a bond issue.

Personal Adornment and Haberdashery

TO the right as you enter the store is a department wherein are carried what are called the small items of man's attire.

But they are the very items that mean comfort, a finished and fine appearance; if the stock from which they are chosen is right and the customer selects with care.

A little guidance (without intruding), on the part of the gentleman serving, is quite desirable and much appreciated by those who wish to adorn their person properly and spend their money wisely.

One of the robust facts concerning this department is that more goods are sold there now than at one time was sold by our entire store.

When you need a pair of Gloves, some Shirts, Underwear, Pajamas, a Necktie or a Collar, we want you to get in the habit of coming here or phoning your order.

Then let your experience be the yardstick with which you measure the store and the department.

For 1913 it must be larger—because it will be better.

CANDLER'S BIRDS WIN IN NEW YORK

Southern Chickens Take Four Blues at Madison Square Garden.

For the first time in poultry history a southern breeder, Asa G. Candler, Jr., has exhibited and won prizes at the Madison Square Garden poultry show in New York, where there is keen competition not only among the best breeders of the United States, but those of Europe as well.

Mr. Candler is the first southern breeder to try conclusion with the world's best offerings who are all ways brought to the Madison Square Garden show, and he comes off with eleven prizes, including four "blue ribbons," or firsts.

Orpingtons are Mr. Candler's specialty, and, according to the decisions and awards of the judges at the Madison Square show, Mr. Candler is the owner of some of the finest of this breed in the world. Telegraphic announcement of his winnings was received in Atlanta Wednesday, and his friends are waiting to extend him hearty congratulations upon his return home.

Here are the prizes won by Mr. Candler's Orpingtons:

Buff Orpingtons—First hen, fifth hen, second pullet, second cockerel, fourth cockerel, third cock.

White Orpingtons—First cock, first cockerel.

Black Orpingtons—Fifth cock, third hen.

Diamond Jubilee Breeding Yard—First pullet.

This is a magnificent string of prizes to be taken in competition with some of the finest birds of Europe, and it is particularly gratifying to know that they come to a southern breeder.

DETECTIVES KEPT BUSY, REPORTS CHIEF LANFORD

The report of Detective Chief Newport Lanford for the month of December, 1912, yesterday submitted to Chief Beavers, shows that his department has had double the amount of work to do in comparison with December, 1911.

A double number of arrests have been made, double number of prisoners were convicted, and a double amount of stolen property was recovered.

The report shows:

The number of cases made for violation of state laws was 114, 84 of which were bound over and committed to jail, and 28 arrested on warrants for other counties, etc.

The length of sentences imposed by the state courts was 63 years 11 months.

Twelve bonds were forfeited, amounting to $2,750. Other fines amounted to $21,500.

Number of cases made before the recorder, 225; amount of fines imposed by the recorder, $4,044.

Number of blind tigers fined and bound over by the recorder, 25.

Number of receipts for lost and stolen articles recovered, 126; the aggregate amount of which is $4,417.55.

Number of new calls for assistance answered, 293. Number of arrests made, 267.

Convicted, 163.

Dismissed, 26.

Released without trial, 23.

Arrested on warrants, 23.

BROUGHTON COMING TO BIBLE MEETING

Former Atlanta Minister Looking Forward With Great Pleasure to Visit Here.

Dr. Len G. Broughton returns to Atlanta for the first time since he accepted the call to Christ church, London, when he comes for the annual Atlanta Bible conference in March.

"I am looking forward with anticipation of great pleasure to being in Atlanta after a year's residence in London," writes the great evangelist.

The thought of meeting once again the friends of the year past is almost equal to real intoxication.

He will bring with him Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, whose presence at the last two conferences added so much to their success. Dr. Morgan is considered one of the greatest living exponents of the Bible.

Among Those Present.

Others who will be present are Dr. J. M. Gray, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago; Dr. J. I. Vance, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. W. B. Wedderburn, Washington, D. C.; Professor Pierce, Chicago, secretary International Sunday School committee, and Professor J. R. Sample, Baptist Theological seminary, Louisville.

The meetings of the conference will be held in the Baptist Tabernacle as heretofore, six meetings daily. Dr. Morgan will speak twice daily.

When Dr. Broughton last March announced that he would accept the call to London, members of the representation the various denominations interested in the continuance of the Atlanta Bible conference formed an association, secured a charter and arranged to perpetuate the meetings.

Dr. Broughton's promise to return for the meetings, and his willingness to lend every aid possible toward the success of the conference he had originated, but which he was then forced to leave, in accordance with his promise, he has announced that he would be here for the next conference, and has issued a call, as director of the conference, asking all who are interested to be present and participate in the six meetings daily.

Dr. Broughton's Call.

He says in part:

"As far as possible, it is our purpose to key the conference this year to evangelism, which must incorporate a most thorough line of Bible teaching."

"In making this call, I take it for granted that a personal word will not be out of place. For fifteen years I have had the pleasure of presiding over this conference, and, while its constituency is now enlarged so as to make it representative of all the evangelical churches of Atlanta, it is, so far as its teaching work is concerned, to be operated on the same plan hitherto carried out."

"So far as I am able to direct the conference, it is to be an occasion for inspiration and instruction. Local problems and civic issues have never been given any place in the conference program; only as they are embraced in the larger and more important scope of the Christian church. It has always been our object to give ourselves at that time to the consideration of such questions as involve the church-at-large, without regard to particular local situations, and without regard to denominational lines of distinction. We meet under one banner—the banner of Jesus Christ as Lord and King."

"We shall endeavor to make this conference specially conspicuous in this respect, and cordially invite those from all parts of the country who feel the need of just such a gathering to join with us in making it a great success feast in spiritual things."

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn is chairman of the association having in charge the local details of the conference, and John J. Eagan is treasurer.

WEDDED BLISS ENDS ON DISCOVERY OF CHILD

Three weeks of happy wedded life were brought to an end by the wife's discovery of the fact that her husband already had a child, living in Canada, were recounted in a suit for divorce filed in the superior court Wednesday by Mrs. Jewel DeArmond against her husband, Herman DeArmond.

The couple were married in Atlanta on the 10th of last June, their separation occurred on July 3, and they have never been reconciled. The child was born in Quebec, Canada, according to the wife's suit.

Another divorce suit was filed with the clerk of the superior court on New Year's morn. The suit was brought by Jacob Kendall against his wife, Mrs. Sarah Della A. Strong Kendall. As a contrast to the three weeks of wedded bliss recounted in the DeArmond suit, the Kendalls had been married for twenty-four years, and have several grown children. Alleged infidelity is the basis of the suit. Mrs. Kendall has been separated from her husband some months, and is now living in California.

FIRST 1913 MARRIAGE FOLLOWS GROOM'S "DARE"

As the whistles boomed forth the tidings of a new year, and a bedlam of noise ushered in 1913 at midnight Tuesday night, Jack Wingate, superintendent of the signal department at police headquarters, and Miss Charity Davis, of 177 Cameron street, became man and wife—Atlanta's first wedding of the year.

It was all caused by a dare. The happy young couple had made arrangements for their marriage, but they had not intended to wed so early. New Year's eve found them attending a watch party at the home of the bride.

"Something was said about 'dares,' and the consequences. 'I never took a dare in my life,' said Miss Davis.

"You wouldn't take one now, would you?" asked Wingate.

"No," answered the girl.

"Then, I dare you to marry me."

Miss Davis' record went unbroken. By 12 o'clock they had obtained the license, roused a preacher out of bed, and managed to have the ceremony performed as the night's celebration reached its zenith.

Jury Disagreed on "Human Bomb."

Los Angeles, Cal., January 1.—Although Carl Riedelbach, the "human bomb," had expected a conviction and warned the authorities that he intended to escape if possible, the jury which heard his case disagreed and was discharged today. His attorneys said they hoped to prove that Riedelbach was insane when he threatened to dynamite the city jail.

SMITH ELECTED HEAD OF BOARD

County Commission Effects
Reorganization and Plans
For 1913.

With the election of Shelby Smith to the head of the board of county commissioners Wednesday and the selection of a number of new officers, the complete reorganization of the Fulton force of officeholders was effected and preparations made for a great year's work in 1913. Mr. Smith succeeded General Clifford L. Anderson as chairman of the body. The only new member of the board was W. Tom Winn, who succeeded H. E. W. Palmer.

To take the place of Dr. O. O. Fanning as superintendent of the almshouse, A. Q. Turner was elected by the board, and his wife made matron of the home, the office being created with a salary of $300 a year. The board voted, however, to continue the salary of Dr. Fanning for two months as he is ill at present in a local sanitarium.

Dr. Hurt Succeeds Dr. Green.

Dr. John W. Hurt was elected county physician to succeed Dr. S. H. Green in the medical inspection work at the jail and at the coroner's inquests. Frank Eaves was made engineer of the jail, and the courthouse, succeeding A. D. Howard. T. E. Lockhart was elected a lieutenant of the county police force and will be assigned to special duty as a county sanitary inspector, the position having just been created.

Dr. Paul McDonald was elected chief county physician, with supervision over the entire health and sanitary department.

Captain Tom Donaldson, superintendent of public works, and T. A. E. Means, superintendent of industrial farms, were re-elected. Others who retain their positions are Zach Rowan, chief of police; Tom Wilson, highway engineer; S. D. Mitchell, custodian of the courthouse; I. H. Gilbert and B. Barrow, watchmen; J. M. Reeves, colored chaplain for the negro convicts; E. L. Vaughn, chaplain for the white convicts; C. H. Conway, chaplain at the

THREE SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN THE SING KEE CASE

Three suspects have been arrested for complicity in the murder of Sing Kee, the Chinaman shot to death several weeks ago in his laundry at 240 Houston street. They are Leonard Jackson, colored, aged 22 years, a laborer of 140 Houston street; Neal Milner, colored, 22 years old, a laborer of 140 Houston street, and Tom Newton, colored, aged 22 years, a laborer, of 240 West Houston street.

All three were arrested yesterday by Detective John Black and Plain Clothes Policemen Newport and Snead. The police believe one of the three committed the actual shooting of the Chinaman, and that the other two were connected with the attempt at burglary which resulted in the murder.

The Jackson and Milner negroes live on Houston street only a few doors below the dead Chinaman's laundry. Both are said by detectives to have been out of the city since a few days following the shooting, returning Wednesday at midnight. Three hours later they were placed under arrest.

PART OF GIRL'S HEAD FOUND ON THE ENGINE

Belleville, Kas., January 1.—Four persons, Wilson James, wife and two children, were killed near here by a Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific passenger train which struck a buggy in which they were riding. Engineer Laird said he did not know his train had killed any one till he reached here. Part of a little girl's head with a bit of blue ribbon tied to the hair was found when the engine was being oiled. Soon afterward there came the news that the buggy had been struck. A switch engine was sent back and picked up the bodies.

RED LAURELS AND THE LAW.

London is the world's metropolis, sheltering every brand of thug, criminal, pariah. Atlanta's population is a negligible fraction of that of the great city on the Thames river. Yet in the year 1912 Atlanta averaged a little above one killing a week, much larger than that of the aggregate homicide rate of the whole of the British Isles.

Bloody laurels, with a vengeance. Concrete evidence that seems to parody our pretensions to Christianity, to civilization, to progress. If all Georgia had produced this astounding record, there would have been sufficient cause for regret. Coming from one city only, it creates doubt if we have left the era of the frontier, if our boasted democratic institutions are strong enough to cope with the enemies of society.

The shame is an open one, one that is universally recognized. J. C. Newton, a 74-year-old confederate veteran, living in Hall county, writes us pessimistically regarding the outlook. "I served four years in the civil war," he says, "and the state of Georgia is in a worse predicament, criminally speaking, today than it was from 1861 to 1865." And further: "I would love to join any good organization for the protection of the helpless and the innocent."

The indictment of this patriarch is indisputable. We have conquered the ghosts and the abject poverty of reconstruction. We plume ourselves on our material achievements. How hollow do such phrases sound when the murder rate mounts unchecked, when lesser infractions of the law rise to higher proportions!

With the true spirit of the sixties, Mr. Newton has his remedy. He would "join any good organization for the protection of the helpless and the innocent." What Georgia, the south, the nation needs is a baptism in the Newton philosophy. Are our courts impotent? It is apathetic public sentiment that makes them so. Is the law weighted down with technicalities, leaden-footed, while its violators are unfettered? This condition could not survive one sweeping expression of popular disapproval. Does England tolerate such barbarians as the pistol-toter? No. Does England make the law a wide-meshed net instead of a steel-riveted structure? No. Does public sentiment in England go lazily about its private business while criminality multiplies? No. Its alertness shames our indifference!

The man of the trenches, like Newton of Hall county, points the way. Let society, through civic organization and through unmistakable popular expression, galvanize sluggish conscience in every community. A year of this process, and 1914 would not witness America pilloried as a "nation of murderers."

NO MORE GOLD BRICKS.

Everyone knows that, in a municipal sense, Atlanta has been in the past a liberal buyer of gold bricks. The taxpayers have paid for them. The story published yesterday by The Constitution regarding the Peachtree paving material gold-brick dramatized the folly on a startling scale.

In its insane pursuit of "cheapness" rather than durability and efficiency, the city bought for Peachtree the identical material that had been condemned by the manufacturers in a letter to the county officials.

In this connection The Constitution publishes elsewhere a communication from Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of construction, as well as the synopsis of his annual report to council. Captain Clayton shows that his department has been, metaphorically, starved to death by lack of appropriations and equipment and then held to a rigid accountability! One inspector only is allowed him for jobs under way in the entire city! How could other than disastrous results be expected, with such miserable niggardliness? The Constitution has never criticized Captain Clayton personally. It has all along known and said that the fault lay not in individuals, but in the entire city system that tolerates and even encourages the buying of municipal "gold bricks." Under the circumstances, and working against a handicap he was powerless to lift, the chief of construction has really made a wonderful record during the past two years.

It is up to public sentiment in Atlanta to see that the New Year marks the end of an out of date system. Until we do, we're thrusting the city backward, not forward; we're taking money out of the pockets of the taxpayers, who pay for what they're not getting; we're making Atlanta a joke before the nation!

RECORDING NEGRO PROGRESS.

The United States senate has already passed a bill appropriating $250,000 for government representation at an exposition, to be held this year, the purpose of which is to record the progress of the negro race since emancipation, fifty years ago. The measure is scheduled to be reported out of the house committee on appropriations within a few days, and should be enacted by the house irrespective of partisanship or sectionalism.

The motive of the exposition is of a historic, national character. The status of the negro and his advancement in the proper direction is an issue that transcends politics or geography. It is the business of north, east, south, west. Americans are far enough away from the blinding rancor of the civil war to know that the racial problem is a national and not a sectional inheritance; that its right solution affects every citizen, whether living in Georgia, Maine or Oregon; that no conscientious thinker, no statesman worthy that name can evade a definite obligation in the premises.

The negro malcontent, who would estrange the races by preaching things futile or impossible, give way steadily to the builders. The latter are striving to teach their people that in a white man's civilization the only negro who survives is the negro who practices the white man's standards of industry, of law and order, of training, of efficiency, of morality, of fidelity to pledged word.

These principles are to comprise the central feature of the exposition which celebrates half a century of progress by the negro. The display should prove an inspiration to the negro, a revelation and a monitor to the white man. Congress could creditably commit the entire country to participation in such an exhibition.

SKIMPING PARKS.

The annual reports of President Cochran, of the park commission, and General Manager Carey, summarized elsewhere, should prove one more prod to the civic conscience of Atlanta.

President Cochran expresses the whole issue of municipal neglect and parsimony toward parks when he deprecates the "policy of appropriating money more grudgingly than a miser spends his hoarded gold." In the face of this restriction, the park system has made wonderful progress, as is evidenced in the reports both of the general manager and the president of the commission. From both, however, come the warning that if Atlanta's breathing and recreation places are to fulfill their functions and not burlesque them the city must cease its "tightwad" attitude.

It is gratifying that Mr. Carey, who has given such signal evidence of ability and of fidelity to duty, should have been, as The Constitution predicted, re-elected. He is among the most efficient and valuable of the city's servants.

Atlantans generally owe it to themselves to digest the warning set forth in these joint reports. It touches on the health and welfare of the present and future generations. And it sheds light on a general skin-flint municipal policy that should go into the discard with the new year.

Mr. Bryan will not settle on his Florida estate. He seems to be under the impression that he can't dictate to the country so well from that end.

Governor Wilson is in favor of the office seeking the man, and he mustn't be found sleeping on its threshold.

Samples of common brick are burdening the parcels post, but a keen eye will be kept on the "golden" variety.

Can't blame the allies for demanding Turkey for New Year's, but it was feared they would carve it to mincemeat.

Why not consolidate The Commoner with The Congressional Record and appoint Bryan editor-in-chief?

"Just From Georgia"

In This New Year.

Dear Heart! lives still a burden you must bear
In this New Year?
Is not Love lost, still worthy of a tear
In this New Year?

Is Home the home where Love may garlands wear
In this New Year?
Love that is strong, and casteth out all fear—
In this New Year?

I know not: O'er a fire, dimly-bright
I dream to-night:
Love seems a ghost, faint glimmering in my sight—
A memory of Light.

Yet there is Love: for, in the Dark unknown,
When winds of winter moan,
There comes a dream—a voice of tender tone,
And I am not alone.

So many hearts there be wherein Love dwells;
Shall mine know Love's farewells?
Yet grief for Love a greater story tells When chime the New Year bells!

Br'er Williams' New Year Texts.
Send trouble ter de woods, if you kin, an' don't ketch him ag'in when you is huntin' a possum.
De ole worl' is gwine ter roll his way, an' ef you don't go on with him you'll never git ter de gittin' off place.
De minute I sees Happiness come in de house I shets de door an' tells him dar's no road dat leads from Home.
When money talks de worl' sets up an' takes notice, but de trouble is, he stops talkin' fo' you knows what he's talkin' 'bout.

The Timely Time.

The water wagon's comin'—
And don't you fellows scoff!—
The saints—they want a subterfuge
For quickly falling off.

The Doubtful One.

My New Year resolution's in the frame,
And one by one I watch the hours go;
Although I think that I am really game,
I'm feeling mighty low!

From the old North State where the tar is strong—
Where New Year fires upon the hilltops flame,
Borne on a train that sped the rails along,
A jug this morning came.

What must a man do, though his heart he gild?
The Carolinas' wealth
This brown jug's aromatic sides unfold:
I drink the North State's health!

Impossible New Year Notes.
My salary has been raised so high that I don't know when I'll get down again.
So far I haven't killed more than three pedestrians with the new automobile presented to me by my employer.

I kept my New Year resolution for six hours and a half, and I'm now nearing the seventh.

It isn't hard to be good, but what is life if you're not sociable?

Our Old Friend.
The New Year is sifting
From the hour-glass the sands,
But still the loved, gray old year
Is holding of our hands.

Let Time go as he will, it's mighty good to wake up on a bright morning, and lay the crutches of Life against the wall and feel that Time is with us still.

A Tribute to Judge Hall

To The Constitution: In the death of Judge John L. Hall there passes from earth a man who will be missed and mourned by grateful friends who have been his neighbors. I knew him well. He did more for friends than any man I ever knew. He seemed to love to do something for them. He did not wait to be asked. He anticipated their wants. He even aspired for them and by his influence achieved promotion for them which they never dreamed of, and he never reminded them of it afterwards. He had a strangely strong faculty of doing things. He accomplished what he sought; sometimes, to be sure, he failed of purpose, but never have I known one who failed so seldom. So potent was his influence that many sought it unreasonably, and, of course, he did not always please—no strong character cannot, yet, the good he had done before assuaged subsequent disappointment of those he could not serve.

Judge Hall was a strong man, loved by neighbors. While his reputation as a lawyer is great, he was a far greater lawyer than he ever had credit for being outside of the limits of those near him. But I'd rather have his reputation at home where he is loved as a neighbor and friend than to be wreathed with laurels of fame. The new year opens sadly to me and to every friend of Judge Hall. God will bless his memory. Sincerely,

JNO. J. HUNT.

A Myth Come True

By PHILIP WELTNER
Secretary Prison Association of Georgia

People smile when they read of old Procrustes, the cruel tyrant. He has been labeled an idle myth. The old king, however, is not dead; he is simply invisible. We are still fitting people to our narrow schemes and, like Procrustes, who chopped off enough of the legs of his victims so as to fit him to the length of his short bed, we still kill those who fail to measure up to our little standards. We pillage the helpless, and degrade the already degraded. J. T. is one of the victims of our system of spolia. His record is a long one. We will begin as far back as November, 1909. He had a wife then and six little children. On the third of that month he was fined $15.75 for drunken and disorderly conduct. The fine was paid, and the children went with a little less to eat for a few days. In 1911, his old weakness overmastered him again. That year he paid into the city treasury $11.50 and served thirty days working the streets. His enforced toll began on December 12, 1911. Just two days before his wife had died of a broken heart. She had been his mainstay, the slender thread that held him to respectability. Now she was gone, and in the man's soul the last glimmer of hope flickered to its death. He was in the stockade; the children, hungry and shivering, at home. Kind neighbors supplied what little they ate, and all the fuel they had. It was not long before they became wards of public charity. J. T. is now a helpless victim of drink. The city took all it could, made him pay until he could pay no more, made him pay regardless of the hunger cry of his wife and children. True, he was put on probation, but what can one probation officer do? Anyway his case is declared hopeless now. It is finished. We took all we could. Now we must pay it back, truly in charity to the little ones we have robbed of father and mother.

These are the sights of everyday. We fling aside the incompetent, the unfit, the inefficient; we hustle them to their doom. And with their doom we seal the fate of the innocent. Procrustes did not fit; he just killed. Is this not another myth come true?

Its failings, faults and fears,
Mourn not, lift up the drooping head,
And shed no useless tears.

Oblivion's shroud be drawn,
Tomorrow on the smiling face,
Shall beam the light of dawn.

It is the valiant, hopeful heart,
That wins the victory.

Life has more joy than dole,
Its noblest prizes may be won,
By the unconquered soul.

New News of Yesterday

A Newspaper Correspondent's
Friendship for Garfield.

By E. J. Edwards.
(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)
This daily series of anecdotes and incidents that throw new, interesting and frequently dramatic light on famous events and personalities of the past have been collected by Mr. Edwards during nearly forty years of more or less intimate acquaintance with many of the country's leaders since the civil war. Each anecdote or incident is fresh from Mr. Edwards' notebook, and, either in whole or in part, it constitutes NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY, garnered from the men who made the news—the history—or from equally authoritative sources. As important contributions of the "human interest" sort to American history, these articles have a distinctive value all their own.

The late General Henry V. Boynton, who was numbered among the bravest of the union officers in the civil war and whose name is identified with the establishment of the great national cemetery at Chickamauga, where he fought, was for many years after the close of the civil war an influential Washington correspondent. He represented a Cincinnati newspaper, and he was also a special correspondent for a number of other newspapers. He became the dean of newspaper row about 1881, although there were one or two other correspondents who had been a little longer in service than he. He was recognized as the dean, however, because of his distinguished career as a soldier before he began his journalistic life.

General Boynton was in confidential relations with almost all of the men in public life at Washington, especially during the administrations of President Hayes and President Garfield. He was several times offered important public office, but he preferred to remain in his post as a Washington correspondent. Furthermore, he had in mind a history of the battle of Chickamauga, and he was intensely interested in the establishment of the national cemetery upon that site. He was a man of very kind heart, extremely sympathetic, a most accurate writer of news, believing that, for him, at least, the best way was to present the news as concisely and briefly as possible. He was also a man of intense loyalty in his friendships. He clung tenaciously to friendly association, and if a man of public life were once his friend, that relation was maintained. He possessed also the quality that goes with this intense loyalty of friendship—a capacity for intense dislikes. "He had any weakness as a journalist it could be exclusively referred to the fact that his loyalty as well as his animosity sometimes influenced his judgment."

On the evening of September 19, 1881, I met General Boynton at the telegraph office in the West End hotel, at Long Branch. I had just received information from my assistant, who was stationed at the Elberon cottage, at Long Branch, to which Garfield was taken from the white house at Washington, that the president had died. The information did not astonish me, for I knew that some members of the cabinet looked upon his death within a few hours as inevitable.

General Boynton's affection for Garfield was almost that of a brother. For that reason he could not believe that Garfield's wound

The World's Mysteries

MYSTERIES OF LITERATUREWHO WROTE THE JUNIUS LETTERS?

It was on January 21, 1769, that the first letter signed "Junius" appeared in "The Public Advertiser," edited and printed in London by Henry Sampson Woodfall. And by a singular coincidence, the last of these letters appeared in the same paper on January 21, 1772, three years later. No series of letters ever written attracted more attention, were the subject of greater discussion, and even to this day it has never been exactly determined as to who was the author of these sixty-nine letters of a character to so thoroughly excite the English nation.

The first of the Junius letters was an attack on several men in high places, including Commander-in-Chief Lord Granby. The general's friend, Sir William Draper, tried to defend him in a letter to the same periodical, whereupon Junius turned upon Draper and gave him a drubbing if anything more severe than the one administered to the man Draper had defended. Sir William tried to defend himself several times, but every time he was put to more discomfort by the charges, which he seemed unable to refute, made by Junius.

These victories over a man of rank and station such as Draper's gave importance to the name of Junius. Henceforth letters with that signature were eagerly expected by the public and carefully prepared by the author. Nor was it long before he swooped at far higher game than Sir William. First came a series of most bitter pasquinades against the Duke of Grafton. Dr. Blackstone was then assailed for the unpopular vote which he gave in the case of Wilkes. In September was published a false and malignant attack upon the Duke of Bedford—an attack which was felt by his descendants for very many years. In December the acme of audacity was reached by the celebrated letter to the king.

All this while conjecture was busy as to who was the author. Names of well-known statesmen or well-known writers—Burke or Dunning, Boyd or Dyer, George Sackville or Gerard Hamilton—flew from mouth to mouth. Such guesses were for the most part made at mere haphazard, and destitute of any plausible ground. Nevertheless the stir and talk which they created added not a little to the natural effects of the writer's wit and eloquence.

"The most important secret of our times," cries Wilkes. Junius himself took care to enhance his own importance by arrogant, even impious, boasts of it. In one letter of August, 1771, he goes so far as to declare that "The Bible and Junius will be read when the commentaries of the Jesuits are forgotten."

Mystery was one of the greatest ingredients to the popularity of Junius. Another not less efficacious was supplied by persecution. In the year of 1770, Mr. Woodfall was indicted for publishing and Mr. Almon, with several others, for reprinting a letter from Junius.

During the years 1770 and 1771 the letters of Junius were continued with little abatement of spirit. He renewed invectives against the Duke of Grafton; he began them against Lord Mansfield; he plunged into the full tide of city politics, and he engaged in a keen controversy with the Rev. John Horne. Besides the letters which Junius wrote for the press, there were many others which he wrote and sent to various persons, intending them for those persons only. When dedicating his collected letters to the English people, he declares: "I am the sole depository of my own secret, and it shall perish with me. No less than fifty-two names of persons to whom the writing of these letters were attributed is given in Cushing's 'Initials and Pseudonyms.'"

ARCHITECTURE

By GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Swash"

(Copyrighted for The Constitution.)
Architecture is the art of designing a building which will not only be handsome today, but will be handsome fifty years hence when the styles have changed.

There are thousands of handsome structures in America today, but that is largely because we have gotten used to them. There are also thousands of middled-aged buildings which cause the casual observer to sigh for a pair of blinders. Most of these buildings were handsome when they were designed, but the people have recovered from the taste which allowed them to admire their particular varieties of warts, protuberances, bulges, fret work, low-browed porches, and jagged jamborees.

Architecture is one of the noblest of callings because it produces beauty which makes glad the eye from century to century. The patient architects who designed the cathedrals of Europe 800 years ago for two shillings per day have long been dust, but people still travel thousands of miles to view their work and to grow and expand esthetically while gazing into the soaring vaults of pillared naves.

If it wasn't for its architecture Europe wouldn't be worth living in. It is a great tribute to America to say that it is worth living in spite of its architecture.

America has many fine architects who produce beautiful buildings in spite of contractors, building committees and tables of estimated income. But it also has many architects who consider that they have done well when they have tastefully arranged a few windows borrowed from different schools of design in a stone wall and have balanced a miscellaneous assortment of towers, spires and domes on top of the same.

America is full of frame houses designed by occupants of some violent ward; of modest homes designed by a cutter of cheese; and of mud colored railroad stations built by a barn builder who has fallen from his high calling. In time the men who perpetrate these things die but the buildings live on in spite of our beneficently high fire losses. America would have more fine architects if it weren't for the American church, the "Modest home designed by a cutter of Cheese."

American frame home and the American two-story business block with the galvanized iron proud flesh on its top. After a good architect has lived around these things for a while he renounces his citizenship with a throbbing cry of pain and flees to Rome to live among the ruins of 2,000 years ago when they tried architects for their buildings and hanged them if they didn't suit.

Mistakes We Women Make

Please heed the rules I am going to give you, as they will be just as good five or ten years from now as they are today. By keeping them constantly in mind and obeying them, you can make a picture of yourself. So many women, I regret to say, do the opposite thing.

If you wish to make yourself as attractive as possible, use your eyes and a good deal of common sense when dressing your hair. Study the lines of your head, and the shape of your face and your hair itself and I think you will evolve a satisfactory coiffure.

Do not, I beg of you, if you are the maid with hair straight as a string and black as a raven's wing, attempt to curl and wave it until it is in a state of so-called artistic disorder. Black, straight hair looks at its worst arranged thus. Let the hair follow its own inclination and lie as smoothly as it will, only accentuate its gloss by polishing it nightly with a square of black velvet and, of course, keep it faintly scented. Glossy black was mortal, and he was firmly persuaded that recovery, slow though it might be, was certain. He was, in fact, a little touchy on the subject, seeming almost to take reports of correspondents who were not hopeful of Garfield's recovery as a personal grievance. At the telegraph office General Boynton greeted me pleasantly. He said, "I have just finished my dispatch to my paper, and I am getting it off rather early tonight, because there isn't much to say."

"What are you telegraphing general?" I asked.

"I am saying that the president has passed a very restful day and that his recovery now seems assured."

So saying, General Boynton showed me his manuscript.

locks drawn loosely over the ears and coiled in a mass of silken puffs and rolls at the nape of the neck, give one a coiffure to be proud of.

Should your hair be fluffy and light, in a word, altogether frivolous, toss it up loosely on the crown of the head and let a few curls stray hither and thither across your forehead. As a matter of fact, you are doubtless yearning to plaster your hair down smoothly over your ears, but refrain from committing this mistake. Your hair is not to the manner born, and will refuse to "stay put." Banish all thought of the coiffure a la Italian and cling to the Billy Burke style of hairdressing.

Never try to make your head look like the wax models you see in your hairdresser's windows. Anything so markedly mechanical will be in poor taste. Try some simpler mode of dressing your hair. Wear it first this way and that, until you evolve a coiffure that is peculiarly becoming to your style of beauty, then rest content.

"I wouldn't send that dispatch, General Boynton," I said.

"Why not?" he replied, a little testily. And he added, "I know that you do not regard Garfield's recovery as probable."

"I wouldn't send that dispatch," I continued, "and for a good reason. General Garfield is dead."

With a glance that told the story of his agony of heart, combined with some feeling toward me as the bearer of evil news, General Boynton left the hotel for the purpose of verifying what I had said. When he returned his face was like that of a man who has lost his dearest friend.

Tomorrow Mr. Edwards will tell of "A Great Lawyer's Idea of Literary Style."

MANY ATLANTANS USE WRONG STAMP

600 Packages, Sent by Parcels Post, Held at Postoffice.

Dr. Linton Smith Opens New Service
by Mailing Beef Roast Home for New Year's Dinner.

When a tired force of postal clerks finished late last night the hardest day's work they had ever had in the Atlanta postoffice, a day which marked the inauguration of the parcels post system, a great pile of 600 packages loomed up as a silent monument to the carelessness of man.

These 600 bundles—containing such widely varied articles as books and cabbages, dressed poultry and savings banks, butter and nails and roast beef—were mailed by people who failed to find out what they had to do in order to make use of the parcels post system. They failed to put on their packages the special stamps sold by Uncle Sam for packages, and as a result, according to the regulations of the post-office department, they will have to be held at the Atlanta office until the senders are notified by card and come to the postoffice and substitute the right kind of stamps for the wrong kind which they used.

Two Thousand Pounds Mailed.
Before dark fell upon the city Wednesday over 1,000 pounds of matter had been mailed and weighed and checked off by the clerks and other basketfuls were waiting. Superintendent Hart estimated the total amount mailed during the first day and night at 2,000 pounds.

Many extraordinary packages were mailed at the parcels post window on New Year's day. "Uncle George" Hammond, one of the veterans of the Atlanta office, was stationed at the window and endeavored to inspect every package before it was mailed. Seventy-odd times an hour, but never getting peevish, he informed people that they would have to have the special parcels post stamps instead of the ordinary stamps they had used. He saved people great delay in the delivery of their packages by his information. But scores rushed up and tossed their bundles in without waiting for instructions, and others dodged "Uncle George" by going to the wrong window.

Brooms Are Mailed.
The largest number of packages dropped in by any one person was by the Southern Broom Works. Brooms were sent near and far. Since the brooms are of light weight, the packages fall within half the cost the broom company has been paying the express company for the same service.

For New Year's dinner at his home, Dr. Linton Smith mailed a beef roast early Wednesday morning addressed to his wife, in East avenue. This was the first local package dropped in the parcels post window and was in time to catch the morning delivery. The postman handed the package to Mrs. Smith at 11 o'clock, and she could hardly contain her astonishment when she found that the beef was in the cold from the ice box out of which it had been taken at the market by Dr. Smith barely a couple of hours earlier.

The first package sent out of town, however, was a violin case mailed by the Cable Piano company to Miss Alice Touchstone, at Zetilla, Ga. Eugene Oberdorfer was the first man on Wednesday to mail vegetables at the Atlanta office. He sent a peck of sweet potatoes to his brother, Max N. Oberdorfer, of Jacksonville. Nearly everything allowed by the regulation was mailed at some time on the first day. Liquors, poisonous animals or insects, live poultry, inflammable material and guano are the only articles excluded.

Delivered By Wagon.
Postoffice officials anticipated that wagon deliveries will be required on Friday, at least, and possibly the first will occur on Thursday. As soon as the parcels accumulate from a distance, for it is not to be forgotten that packages were mailed to Atlanta Wednesday from all parts of the union, the wagons will have to be used to deliver the mail over the city. The regular postmen will carry small articles up to the limit of two mail sacks, and the rest will be held for the wagons. When the system has settled down to regularity, it is expected that two wagon deliveries will be made every day in the residence sections, and from three to five down town.

Tuesday, the last day of 1912, proved the busiest day in three months in the regular mailing department of the postoffice. The cancelling machine made its death mark during the day on 25,000 stamps, the largest number since October 1, when the record cancellation of the year was made, 274,000 stamps being cancelled.

HOW STAUNTON WELCOMED WOODROW WILSON

Staunton, Va., the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, gave him a most splendid welcome when he returned to celebrate his fifty-sixth birthday. The main street was gayly decorated and illuminated in his honor, public and private buildings were gay with flags and bunting and the entire populace turned out to do honor to the distinguished guest. Mr. Wilson was entertained by Dr. A. M. Fraser, who occupies the house in which Governor Wilson was born. More than 25,000 visitors came to the city to join the 12,000 residents in the parade or in cheering the paraders. Governor Wilson met a number of elderly persons who knew him as a baby.

CLAIM AGENTS WILL ORGANIZE

State Organization to Form
Nucleus for Southeastern Association.

Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—At the request of claim agents of a score or more of prominent southern railroads, W. O. Wall, secretary of the Georgia Association of Railway Claim Agents, has issued a call for a meeting at Jacksonville, Fla., when the Southeastern Claim Agents' association will be formally organized. This proposed organization was launched in Macon with the formation of the Macon Claim Agents' association. Since then the state association has been formed and now one for the entire southeastern territory is to be organized.

The men behind the association ultimately expect to make it national in its scope.

Public Market House.
Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—The city council as turned down Alderman Reeves' opposition to improve the city market house by an expenditure of $10,000. Objection to such a course was raised by business men on Poplar street, who want the market abolished entirely, despite the fact that it is a good revenue source for the city. It is now believed that before many months have elapsed Macon will for the first time in half a century be without a public market house.

Beer Saloons Restricted.
Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—The Moore administration has asserted itself in regard to the near beer situation in Macon and as a result saloons have been barred from Cotton avenue between Poplar and New streets, and in the restricted district known as "Tybee." A number of applications for license to operate negro locker clubs have also been turned down.

Agents of M. D. & S. Meet.
Macon, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—To outline plans for handling their business for the new year, commercial and general agents of the Macon, Dublin and Savannah railroad, scattered from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Miami, Fla., will gather in Macon today and be in session here through tomorrow.

Officials will make a trip over the line tomorrow morning, visiting the clay mines at Vidalia, and will stop several hours at Dublin.

A theater party was given last night in honor of the visitors. Vice President J. T. Wright being the host.

TWO SUDDEN DEATHS SHOCK CLASSIC CITY

Athens, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—Athens had two sudden deaths this evening. W. H. Wier, an old citizen, while sitting in a hack in front of a doctor's office, was attacked with paralysis, carried into the physician's office and expired in a few minutes while the doctor was working with him.

An hour later, Herman Smith, a veteran of the Civil war, expired in the arms of a physician, whom he had called in to prescribe for some trivial ailment. He was joking with the doctor, seated by his bedside, when he suddenly fell forward and the physician caught him as the veteran died.

OLD GUARD DRILL AT TOURNAMENT

Proceeds Will Be Used to Send Fifth Regiment to Inauguration.

The Old Guard drill and dress parade will be one of the most interesting and distinctive features of the forthcoming military tournament to be given at the auditorium armory January 15 and 16 for the purpose of assisting in raising a fund to meet the expenses of the Fifth Regiment Infantry, National Guards of Georgia, in attending the inauguration of President Woodrow Wilson and participating in the inauguration parade.

First announcement of the general plans for the forthcoming tournament and the fact that the proceeds would be devoted to the inaugural trip, was made Wednesday.

The Old Guard, under command of Colonel J. P. Burke, in all the splendor of their new uniforms will present the ceremony of dress parade. The first company of the battalion will be officered by Capt. George M. Napier, First Lieutenant Thos. C. Erwin and Second Lieutenant C. P. Byrd, and the second company by Capt. F. J. Clark and Second Lieutenant A. H. Davis. There will be forty men in each company, eighty in all.

Two Performances Given.
Two performances will be given on the evening of January 15 and 16 respectively.

Many other organizations will participate in addition to the Fifth regiment and Old Guard. These will include companies of United States Infantry from Fort McPherson, a troop of cavalry from Fort Oglethorpe, Chickamauga, the Ladies Hunt club and military school cadets.

Special features of the program will include a grand review of all the military organizations; special drill of the Old Guard; tent pitching scene by companies of the Fifth with songs, blanket tossing and other stunts typical of camp life; special bayonet exercises, setting up exercises; tournament with open challenge to other military and United States companies and old style guard mount, an impressive military ceremony.

Regulars Take Part.
Capt. Herbert A. White and Lieut. Robinson, crack riders of the United States army, will be here with the cavalry troop from Fort Oglethorpe, and an entire battalion from Fort McPherson will participate.

The committee in charge of the program is composed of Lieut.-Col. Orville H. Hill, chairman; Capt. W. H. Leahy, secretary; Major W. C. Hendrix, Capt. W. J. Stoddard, Capt. W. T. Spratt, Jr., Capt. J. W. Quillian, Capt. F. H. Lichtenwalter, Capt. Asa W. Candler, of the Fifth and Capt. E. Stone and Lieut. John H. Hest of the Seventeenth U. S. Infantry, Fort McPherson.

Box seats will sell for $2 each, while the first three rows back of the boxes will be $1 per seat; next three rows, 75 cents per seat. Other seats 50 cents, except the gallery, which will be 25 cents. Tickets will be on sale at Daniel Bros.

FORGERY CHARGE AGAINST M. W. COLE

Arkansas Sheriff Arrives in Lawrenceville to Carry Back Policeman.

Lawrenceville, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—Deputy Sheriff Hungate arrived from Mena, Ark., last night to carry back to that state Policeman M. W. Cole, charged with liberating a prisoner and accepting a bribe, and also on the charge of forgery.

About six weeks ago Cole was sent to Arkansas by Sheriff E. S. Ga. to arrest Wade Higgins, indicted for the murder of John McClung in Gwinnett county fourteen years ago. Cole secured his man, but on the return trip claims that Higgins escaped, and so reported to the officers here upon his arrival. Last Friday Sheriff Garner was notified by the officers of the Arkansas city to arrest Cole on the charge of accepting $100 from Higgins and allowing him to get away. Cole has been in jail several days and on Tuesday his lawyer took out a writ of habeas corpus before Judge C. H. Brand for Cole's release and the hearing is set for Thursday afternoon in Athens.

Policeman Cole says he expects to be turned over to Sheriff Hungate and they will leave for Arkansas Thursday afternoon from Athens. The Arkansas official says that Cole is also charged with forging the sheriff's name to a telegram, which Cole denies. Cole will demand a hearing immediately upon reaching Mena and expects to have both charges dismissed. He says that he was to have received $200 and his expenses if he had brought Higgins back to Georgia, and therefore it is out of reason to suppose that he would have accepted a bribe of $100 from his prisoner.

Chauteauqua for Cordele.
Cordele, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—From the fact that a contract was signed between Cordele citizens and the Altheke Lyeum company on yesterday afternoon, it is virtually assured that Cordele is to have a permanent chauteauqua. Though Cordele in her early years maintained a chauteauqua, it was found about ten years ago to be a losing undertaking for the stockholders. Consequently, when the project was revived last year, it was looked on with some skepticism. However, the week of amusement last spring proved splendidly successful, which has given great encouragement for the chauteauqua to be given in May of the approaching spring.

Wynn Files Petition.—James R. Wynn, a retail merchant of Carrollton, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States court. The schedule indicated debts amounting $915.27, with assets of $7,850.08, of which $942.52 is set out as property exempt by law.

TIFT COMMISSIONERS SERVED WITH MANDAMUS

Tifton, Ga., January 1.—(Special).—The board of county commissioners of Tift county has been served with a writ of mandamus requiring it to work the public roads of the Ty Ty district. The order was signed by Judge Thomas, in Valdosta, last night. Petition was brought October 14 by citizens of the Ty Ty district, in which it was set forth that a number of the public roads in that district had not been worked for from two to four years, and, as a consequence, roads, bridges and causeways had become almost impassable, several of them remaining in that condition for from six months to two years. These roads nearly all led to Ty Ty, and it was claimed that the failure to work them was a discrimination against that town. The petition prayed that the commissioners be required to repair these roads, and bridges, and bring them up to the standard required by law.

NEW PRIMA DONNA OPENS ENGAGEMENT IN ATLANTA

To Atlanta was introduced a new prima donna yesterday afternoon, at the Atlanta, in the person of Miss Margaret Wright, who is to succeed Miss Mizzi Hajos in the title role of "The Spring Maid." Miss Hajos was unable to sing yesterday, and Miss Wright, who was sent from the eastern company to take her part, was week obliged, and did so wonderfully well. She displayed a voice of greater power than Miss Hajos, and proved a most winning successor to the little Hungarian. Miss Hajos goes to Chicago, after this week, to sing the title role in "The Rose Maid" during the run of that play there. Then she will be starred in a new play which goes into rehearsal in February.

FEWER ALARMS IN 1912; FIRE DAMAGE SMALLER

The efficiency of the Atlanta fire department, and its rapid growth, is shown in the figures contained in Chief Cummings' annual report submitted yesterday. The city's fire loss during 1912 was $200,000 less than the loss of 1911. The loss for the outgoing year was $347,633, against a loss of $542,695 during the preceding year.

Nine hundred and fourteen fire calls were answered in 1912 while 1,010 were answered in 1911.

Chief Cummings has received congratulations of the city's insurance men for the service of his department. The total value of property at risk during 1912 was $7,485,583, with a total insurance of $8,312,449.

"The fire department was on its toes the last few days of the old year," Chief Cummings said Wednesday, "for we knew the year would end with a record as fine as any established by a department in the entire south. We were afraid throughout the last few hours of the year that a big conflagration would break out that would send our record crumbling."

Society in Atlanta Needs Several Finishing Touches

A number of Atlanta hostesses who entertain have declared recently that they have been discouraged in the matter of giving large entertainments, because the careless habit which prevails here of men and women, young and old, not replying to invitations makes it impossible for a hostess to make the necessary arrangements which precede a large entertainment, especially if it be in the private residence.

Even if the entertainment happens to be at the club, the plan of the entertainment has to be given to the one in charge, and the first question is, "How many will there be?"

The hostess knows how many she has invited, but sometimes until the moment she receives her guests she does not know how many are coming, for as many as two-thirds frequently neglect to reply.

"By the way," says Mr. Smith to Mr. Jones, after concluding a business conversation with him in an office, "my wife received the invitation your wife sent us, and we are surely going to your party." Jones, of course, forgets to tell his wife, and Mrs. Jones begins to wonder whether the Smiths received their invitation.

Nothing excuses Mrs. Smith for not having replied to the invitation except ignorance of the fact that a reply is necessary, for if she cannot write through early neglect of education, she should have had her husband's stenographer reply for her.

Now it does seem impossible that in this day and generation there could be any woman ignorant of the fact that a written or engraved or printed invitation requires a reply.

Just Civilization; That's All.

Whether a woman is the so-called "society" woman, whether or not she entertains, if she lives in a house in a community she should have in that house a pen and ink and piece of paper. It is not an expression of civilization that when she receives a cordial invitation she should reply to it; that the one who sent it may not suspect the postoffice is at fault or that the communication has been lost between the front door and the lady's desk.

The lady's desk is just as much a part of a lady's equipment as her dressing table or her bureau or wardrobe, and nothing more markedly distinguishes the lady than her carefulness of the little amenities which are really more a matter of inheritance and breeding than of cultivation.

If, in the case of the woman whose early training at home has lacked the instruction that a well posted mother gives her daughters, which is a matter deserving of pity rather than scorn, any girl who has attended the common schools has been taught how to reply to a note of invitation; therefore there seems really no excuse for the carelessness complained of by those who give large entertainments.

It is carelessness, everybody knows, and the irregular and restless habits that modern women are getting into causes this neglect of the courtesy due invitations, but it brands society as very superficial and aimless when women have not time to attend to their business pertaining to it, and when society ceases to represent the medium through which men and women appear at their best and do their best.

Mornings Should Be Theirs.

Ladies should try to have their mornings to themselves. In the case of their having the responsibility of housekeeping, it is very rare that they can look after all the little things before the noon hour, and among the little things should come the care of and responsibilities of the writing desk. True, bills—awful bills—are there, but even they, taken hold of systematically, lose some of their unpleasant quality, and there is the invitation to be looked after. There, too, is the polite query from the charitable institution, maybe the public office or community meeting, and boring as these latter communications may be, it is the business of the woman receiving them to reply to them with courtesy. It expresses what she is, what she feels, and what she represents.

When the important position of a woman, socially or otherwise, so hangs her mail on her desk that she can not handle it, then that lady should have a secretary. The secretary need not be a permanent institution, but one who can come when needed—but really there are few women in Atlanta, who, if they are good managers and stay at home enough, can not well handle their social correspondence.

Although it is the younger element of society who are charged more continuously with this indifference to etiquette, it is the mothers who are to blame. If daughters were impressed right by seeing what mothers do in this direction, they would follow the good example.

No better New Year's resolution could be made by the twentieth century woman, young and old, than to stop and draw her breath, especially in the morning; take stock of the personal business which confronts her right at home, and to go to her writing desk in the morning before she does anything else, even to read the morning paper—and by the way, to read the morning paper and the afternoon paper, or at least one daily paper, is something every woman should do; but that is another story.

Evening Bridge Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Geddings Tupper gave a delightful bridge party, followed by a buffet supper, last evening at their home at East Lake, in compliment to Julia Callaway and Dr. George K. Varden.

There were artistic Christmas decorations, and the prizes at bridge were silk stockings, a deck of cards and embroidered towels. Mrs. Tupper wore a gown of green chiffon, telling white satin. The guests included Miss Callaway, Dr. Varden, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Boland, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Will Spalding, Miss Ella May Thornton and Mr. Dick Thornton.

Miss Levin's Eggnog Party.

Miss Gladys Levin entertained at an informal eggnog party yesterday afternoon at her home in Ansley Park, the guests calling between 4 and 6 o'clock. Red roses and narcissi were used in the dining room, and in the other apartments there were holiday decorations in red and green.

Miss Levin was charming in a costume of black and white charmeuse satin combined with cerise satin and shadow lace.

Mrs. Levin, who received with her daughter, wore yellow crepe meteor, with draperies of lace.

Assisting Miss Levin in entertaining were Misses Helen Hawkins, Harriet C. Holt, Helen Dargan, Ruth Stallings and Mary Helen Moody.

Mrs. Glover's Luncheon.

The buffet luncheon given by Mrs. H. W. B. Glover yesterday for her daughter, Miss Gladys Glover, was a delightful event of the day. Holly and mistletoe, with ferns and a profusion of Richmond roses, decorated the apartments. An artistic arrangement of Richmond roses was the centerpiece of the table in the dining room. Silver candelsticks had red tapers burning under red shades, and all of the color details of the handsomely appointed table were in red and white.

Mrs. Glover wore a gown of black satin charmeuse, and Miss Glover's French gown was of gray crepe meteor combined with cerise chiffon, and she wore a corsage bouquet of red roses.

The guests were Miss Virginia Lipscomb, Miss Dorothy Carr, of Mississippi; Miss Mattie Lamb, of Richmond, Va.; Miss Adgate Tins, Miss Elizabeth Thompson, of Philadelphia; Miss Madeline Campbell, of California; Miss Adeline Davis, of the University of Pennsylvania; Miss Louise Broyles, Miss Harriet Benedict, of Athens; Miss Ella Jackson, Miss Margaret Grant, Miss Mary Brown, Miss Virginia Bowman, Miss Harriet Broyles, Miss Josephine Mobley, Miss Alice Parks, Miss Helen McCullough, Miss Dorothy Prioleau, Miss Theo Prioleau, Miss Marion Vaughn, Miss Ferol Humphries, Miss Lawson Hines, Miss Isabelle Robinson, Miss Elizabeth Black, Messrs. Caverly, Jr., John Westmoreland, Henry Peoples and Tompkins Davis.

Club Reception at College Park.

A happy occasion of last evening was the reception given by the Woman's club of College Park at the home of the president, Mrs. Dan Lytle. The decorations were charming in their expression of the holiday season, and there was a large and representative assemblage. Assisting Mrs. Lytle receive were Mrs. B. W. Martin, Mrs. Lee Mason, Mrs. Annie Thornton, Mrs. William Reed, Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. C. D. Gray, Mrs. J. A. Trammel, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. I. C. McCrory, Mrs. R. S. Proctor, Mrs. W. E. Whitehead, Mrs. Williamham, Mrs. Frances Drake, Mrs. T. J. Merriam, Mrs. Emma Connally.

Assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Miss Gray, Miss Crankshaw, Miss Trammel, Miss Richardson, Miss Jackson, Miss Smith, Miss Broom, Miss McCrory.

U. D. C. Meeting.

The Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., invites every member of the chapter, through the daily papers, as no formal invitations will be issued, to present at the reception to be held in the Woman's club rooms this afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Each member has the privilege of bringing a friend.

A delightful program of music, which will include the old southern melodies, has been arranged by Mrs. John A. Ferdue, chairman of the entertainment committee. The receiving party will be composed of the president, Mrs. William McCarthy; the honorary president, Mrs. C. Helen Plane; the officers of the chapter and the ex-presidents. They will be assisted in receiving by the members of the social committee.

Johnson-Floyd.

A very pretty home wedding was that in which Miss Lillie Swift Johnson and Mr. Charles E. Floyd were married, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Kittle Johnson, on December 24, at Stone Mountain, Ga. Only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends were present. The bride was lovely in her traveling suit of dark blue cloth, with touches of pink on corsage and hat. Her flowers were bride roses. Mrs. Floyd is the only daughter of the late Mr. Charles S. Johnson, and is much admired for her sweet and charming personality. Mr. Floyd is a rising young business man of Atlanta.

The young couple left immediately on their wedding trip, amid showers of rice and well-wishes. On their return, will make their home in Atlanta.

New Year's Party.

Miss Irene Ewing and Miss Mary Eddleman were the hostesses at a most delightful New Year's eve party at Miss Ewing's home in East Decatur. Several interesting games were played, Miss Berta David and Mr. Roy MacDonald winning the prizes in guessing contests. Music was a feature of the program, rendered by several of the young ladies. At a late hour refreshments were served. Those enjoying the occasion were Misses Irma Ewing, Mary Eddleman, Dorothy Bennett, Annie and Pauline Austin, Louise Brown, Allene Davis, May, Berta, Zoedox and Glennie David, Merideth and Frances Mischaum, Helen Cat, Evelyn Fowler, and Katherine Cleator; Messrs. Arthur Hardage, W. Paul Blackman, Charles Ben David, Hubert Mayfield, Perry, Henry and Sam Ford, Clyde Davis, Ed Yonts, Houston Miller, Walter Freeman, Gaston Hudgens, Hanson and Olin Harrison, Mac and Sam Farrar, Harold Milas and Roy MacDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrison and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Millwood assisted in entertaining.

The Baracas of Epworth church, at their last meeting, Monday, December 30, elected the following officers: Teacher, Jubal Clark; assistant teacher, J. J. Foote; president, Harold Aikens; vice president, J. J. Foote; secretary and treasurer, Will Buchanan; assistant secretary, George Aikens; marshal, Le Olin Foote; critic and reporter, Jubal Clark; committee on social and entertainment, Grady Goode; membership committee, Walter Smith. A delightful supper was given under the management of Grady Goode. There was also music and singing.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Eubanks and Mr. James Rogan Bachman was a pretty event of yesterday morning, taking place at 10 o'clock, at Trinity church, and was witnessed by a large company of friends. Palms and ferns decorated the church and before the entrance of the wedding party Mr. Mrs. T. J. Merriam, Mrs. Emma Connally.

The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. Lynn Bachman, D.D., of Sweetwater, Tenn. Miss Mary Eubanks was her sister's maid of honor and the best man was the groom's brother, Mr. Byers M. Bachman.

The ushers were Mr. Werner M. Jeffries, Dr. W. P. Smith, Mr. James Harris, Mr. James M. Patton, Mr. Stern Carson and Mr. John Bachman.

The bride, who entered the church with her father, Mr. R. S. Eubanks, was charming in her going-away gown of taupe-colored cloth, with hat of mole skin, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor wore a gown of old blue cloth with hat to match, and her flowers were pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Bachman left for a trip of two weeks to New York, and en route home will visit Mr. Bachman's family in Tennessee. They will be at home at East Lake, where they have taken a house, after February 1.

For Bridal Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Black entertained the bridal party last evening at a buffet supper at their home on Peachtree street, after the church rehearsal for the wedding of Miss Margaret Beck and Mr. Hamilton Block.

Vases of pink roses and pink carnations with narcissi decorated the filled some home, and a lovely cup held with pink roses was the centerpiece of the table in the dining room. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Bancker, Mrs. Francis Block and Miss Block.

Mr. M. C. Donnell will entertain at luncheon at 1 o'clock Monday in compliment to Mrs. William Cumming Story, the guest of Miss Adrienne Battey. The same afternoon Miss Battey entertains for her at 4 o'clock.

Miss Oden Entertains.

Miss Sue Oden entertained at a "watch party" Tuesday evening, December 31, at which thirty of her friends were entertained. Her sisters, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Baker, presided at the punch bowl, which was on a table beautifully decorated in fern and red flowers.

Games were played, the prizes won by Miss Helen Wilson, and by Mr. Robert Hardin. Delicious refreshments were served, and the occasion was an enjoyable one.

Election of Officers.

The Baracas of Epworth church, at their last meeting, Monday, December 30, elected the following officers: Teacher, Jubal Clark; assistant teacher, J. J. Foote; president, Harold Aikens; vice president, J. J. Foote; secretary and treasurer, Will Buchanan; assistant secretary, George Aikens; marshal, Le Olin Foote; critic and reporter, Jubal Clark; committee on social and entertainment, Grady Goode; membership committee, Walter Smith. A delightful supper was given under the management of Grady Goode. There was also music and singing.

Eubanks-Bachman.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Eubanks and Mr. James Rogan Bachman was a pretty event of yesterday morning, taking place at 10 o'clock, at Trinity church, and was witnessed by a large company of friends. Palms and ferns decorated the church and before the entrance of the wedding party Mr. Mrs. T. J. Merriam, Mrs. Emma Connally.

The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. Lynn Bachman, D.D., of Sweetwater, Tenn. Miss Mary Eubanks was her sister's maid of honor and the best man was the groom's brother, Mr. Byers M. Bachman.

The ushers were Mr. Werner M. Jeffries, Dr. W. P. Smith, Mr. James Harris, Mr. James M. Patton, Mr. Stern Carson and Mr. John Bachman.

The bride, who entered the church with her father, Mr. R. S. Eubanks, was charming in her going-away gown of taupe-colored cloth, with hat of mole skin, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor wore a gown of old blue cloth with hat to match, and her flowers were pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Bachman left for a trip of two weeks to New York, and en route home will visit Mr. Bachman's family in Tennessee. They will be at home at East Lake, where they have taken a house, after February 1.

For Miss Hines.

Miss Katherine Wooten entertained very delightfully at bridge Monday evening in honor of Miss Mary Hines, a debutante of the season. The decorations were holly wreaths, mistletoe and poinsettia blooms. The prizes were an engagement book for the guest of honor, a work set, a memorandum book, a calendar and a deck of cards. Miss Wooten was gowned in white chiffon over white charmeuse satin, and Miss Hines wore a becoming gown of yellow satin. Mrs. Wooten wore black crepe trimmed in point lace. The guests were Misses Emma Kate Amorous, Caroline Muse, Emily Winship, Harriet Cole, Virginia Donnell, Elizabeth Dunson, Elizabeth Morgan, Laura Cowles, Emily Cassin and Mary and Helen Hawkins. Messrs. Lee Harvey, Strother Fleming, Hugh Scott, Fred Hoyt, Fred McGonigal, James Wells, Hamilton Douglas, Murray Donnell, Robert Ramspeck, Cator Woolford, Royston Cabaniss, Charles Montgomery and Walter Marshburn and Judge and Mrs. J. K. Hines.

Matrons' Club to be Entertained.

The Matrons' Club of West End will be entertained this afternoon by Mrs. William A. Hartman. The entertainment is at 3 o'clock.

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Nunnally Entertain.

The eggnog party at which Mr. and Mrs. Nunnally entertained yesterday, was in the nature of a house warming, the first entertainment they had since moving into their pretty new home. There were decorations in palms and potted plants, and in the dining room the table from which dainties were served had its centerpiece in a silver basket filled with red roses. Silver candlesticks held unshaded red tapers, and the minor appointments carried out the same scheme. Eggnog was served in the sun parlor, where there were beautiful decorations in potted fern and cut flowers in white and red. Mrs. Nunnally wore a reception gown in the shades of midnight blue, and was a lovely hostess.

Miss LeVine's Party.

Miss Gladys LeVine had received with her yesterday a group of the season's prettiest debutantes, when she entertained her friends at an eggnog party from 4 until 6 o'clock. There were Misses Helen Hawkins, Harriet Cole, Helen Dargan, Ruth Stallings and Mary Helen Moody.

The house was beautifully decorated in Christmas green and red; the wreaths everywhere and potted poinsettias. Red roses decorated the table, from which delicious things were served.

Miss LeVine's Frenchy toilet combined black, white and cerise, and was trimmed in shadow lace. Mrs. LeVine wore ecru colored crepe meteor.

The Sigma Nu Ball.

The Sigma Nu ball at the Capital City club was a delightful occasion when the visiting delegates were entertained by the Atlanta chapter. The ball room was rich in holiday decorations and the music was of the most inspiring kind. A supper was served in the ladies' a gentlemen's cafe and several hundred people were brilliantly entertained.

To Dr. and Mrs. Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Evans entertained at dinner last evening in honor of their guests, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Evans, of Chicago. Invited to meet them were Dr. and Mrs. Adams of Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Floyd McRae and Mr. and Mrs. Scott.

The table decorations were unique in their combinations of scarlet azaleas and golden gate roses. The arrangement was artistic, and the candlesticks had gold-tipped shades. Mrs. Evans wore a handsome dinner gown of black satin, with corsage trimmings of white and blue.

Standard Club Ball.

The annual New Year ball of the

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT MADDOX

—Little Boy One of First Callers—

REVIVE NEW YEAR'S CUSTOM

A little boy, 7 years old, was one of the first guests to call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, when yesterday, according to the old-fashioned New Year's custom, they were at home to their friends. He had heard his father and mother say that Mr. and Mrs. Maddox wanted their friends to call, and that there were no invitations.

"I am a friend of theirs," he said, "and I want to go; they say they want their friends." He went, and that expressed some of the spirit that made the occasion the happy one it was. Friends who were friends went, and a more beautiful entertainment was never given in the hospitable home.

There were the holiday decorations, in the red-trimmed wreaths that hung in the windows, and the house plants always adding to the interior attractiveness. In the long drawing room, where Mr. and Mrs. Maddox received, the decorations were in American Beauties. They filled tall vases, and were on the mantel, on the cabinets and on the tables. Out in the sun parlor, all white in its fountain and marble furnishings, were potted poinsettias and palms. Here punch was served. In the dining room, the decorations were all in white and red. In the center of the circular tables was a tall silver epergne, filled with Easter lilies and poinsettias. At the base was a wreath of holly, and the silver candlesticks had shades of red. A silver bowl held tempting eggnog, and silver platters sandwiches, French patties, and all kinds of cake.

Mrs. Maddox was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Henry Jackson, Miss Alexander, Mrs. James Dickey, Mrs. Morris Brandon, Mrs. William Kiser.

She was beautiful in a chiffon gown of blue, the corsage embroidered in beads in the turquoise shades.

Standard club at the club rooms last night was a brilliant affair and largely attended. The club was decorated in pink and green. Pink roses were used in profusion and the candelabras had pink shades.

Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Among the attractive out-of-town visitors here for the occasion were: Miss Helen Michael, Athens, who wore a chiffon robe over white brocade; Miss Helen Michael, Athens, who wore a chiffon robe over white brocade; Miss Helen Michael, Athens, who wore a chiffon robe over white brocade.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Porter's home on Peachtree Heights was the scene of a beautiful luncheon and eggnog party yesterday. Bouquets and garlands of cedar decorated the attractive home.

In the dining room, where an elegant luncheon was served buffet, the decorations were entirely in white and green.

The central decoration of the table from which the confections were served was lilies of the valley, and all of the minor details of the daintily appointed table were green and white. About the apartment in window, boxes and on mantel and buffet were valley lilies and Roman hyacinths.

Eggnog was served from a side table. Mrs. Porter wore a gown of gray crepe de chine.

The guests included only members of the family connection.

Mrs. Forrester's Bridge Party.

Mrs. George Forrester's bridge party yesterday afternoon at her home on Peachtree street was a compliment to a group of young girls at home from school for the holidays and for their visitors.

Richmond roses decorated the draw-

Mrs. Jackson wore black velvet; Mrs. Dickey, old gold chiffon, with a border in the shades of gold and deep red; Mrs. Brandon, ciel blue lisse, painted in a design of pink roses; Mrs. Kiser, black satin with corsage of white lace and silver; Miss Alexander, gray charmeuse and silver.

Among the visiting guests were Dr. and Mrs. William A. Evans, of Chicago, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wynn, and Dr. and Mrs. Adams of Madison, Wis. There was a group of charming visitors from among the school-girl set, and the delay of the guests who went upstairs, leaving their wraps explained by the wide-awake presence of the lovely baby of the household, Master Maddox, who smiled a genial welcome as he kept open house in the nursery.

The ladies calling wore the prettiest of midwinter toilets. Mrs. Alexander wore black silk, with trimmings of jet; Mrs. Robert Lowry, pale gray charmeuse, with trimmings of silver and orchid color, her hat trimmed in plumes that color; Mrs. Clark Howell, black and white; Mrs. LeVine, black, black hat trimmed in white plumes; Mrs. James D. Robinson, black velvet, with black plumed hat; Mrs. Boykin Robinson, black velvet and ermine; Mrs. Charles Sciple, smart toilet of black and white; Mrs. LeVine, black, black velvet gown, her hat of ermine; Mrs. John Grant, black satin, her black hat trimmed in white aigrettes; Mrs. Percival Sneed, dark taupe-colored velvet, with hat to match; Mrs. Thomas B. Fielder, dark blue and gray broadcloth, with hat to match; Mrs. William Lawson Peel, violet-colored moire, heavily embroidered, her hat to match; Mrs. Edward Inman, black velvet, her hat of black velvet; Mrs. Mrs. Charles Haden, black chiffon, with trimmings of lace and rose color; Mrs. Frank Callaway, black velvet.

ing room and in the other apartments pink roses and carnations were used. In the dining room at the end of the top score, a dainty pincushion, and Miss Josephine Mobley won a beautiful work box of old rose silk, for consolation.

In the dining room refreshments were served in the dining room at the end of the top score, a dainty pincushion, and Miss Josephine Mobley won a beautiful work box of old rose silk, for consolation.

Refreshments were served in the dining room at the end of the top score, a dainty pincushion, and Miss Josephine Mobley won a beautiful work box of old rose silk, for consolation.

Miss Wyatt's Bridge Party.

Miss Laura Wyatt was hostess at a pretty bridge party yesterday afternoon at her home in Ansley Park in compliment to Miss Margaret Beck. Growing plants and red carnations attractively decorated the house.

Miss Nell Waldo won the prize, silk stockings, for top score, and the consolation prize, a book, was cut by Miss Cary Greene.

The honor guest was given a boudoir cap.

Miss Wyatt wore a red crepe de chine gown and Miss Beck wore blue velvet with black hat, trimmed in plumes.

The guests included only Miss Beck and her attendants.

Matinee Party.

Misses Henrietta and Estelle Auerbach entertained at a matinee party at the Lyric Tuesday afternoon for Miss Lucille Stern, of Richmond, Va., and Miss Ethel Solomon, of Wilmington, N. C. Others in the party were Misses Fannie Stern, Marguerite Kahn, Helen Michael, of Athens, and Gene Silverman. A delightful luncheon was enjoyed at the Piedmont after the performance.

Watch Party.

A watch party given by the Iris quartet at the home of Mr. Joseph Liorens, 53 Hayden street was one of the many enjoyable events of the coming of the new and the going of the old year.

The congenial party, comprised of about fifty young people, greatly enjoyed the renditions of the quartet, comprised of Messrs Joseph V. Liorens, C. A. Kirby, Luther Thompson and E. C. Andrews.

The following were among those present: Misses Inez Brooks, Margaret Henderson, Aline Morris, Mabel Godfrey, Virginia Dare, Esther Sarver, Earnest Houston, Violet Williams, Dorothy Brown, Letitia Smith and others; Messrs. George Miller, R. B. Hamilton, William Hodnet, James Speers, Victor Jenkins, Joseph V. Liorens, C. A. Kirby, Luther Thompson, E. C. Andrews and others.

Punch was served, and, after a very enjoyable evening, the assembled party was taken to their homes in automobiles, furnished by the quartet.

DR. W. A. EVANS
HERE ON VISIT

He is the Former Health Commissioner of Chicago.

Dr. William A. Evans, former health commissioner of Chicago, and one of the foremost health and sanitation experts in this country, is in Atlanta on a visit to his sister, Mrs. J. O. Wynn, 81 Peachtree circle.

Dr. Evans is remembered here for his lecture, in 1910, before the city council at the request of Robert F. Maddox, then mayor. The bond election was pending, and Dr. Evans told what was needed in the way of sanitation, and what could be accomplished with the amount of money to be voted.

As director of the health campaign in Chicago, Dr. Evans brought about reforms which have been studied and copied throughout the world.

YOUNG PEOPLE WILL

Mrs. C. S. L'Engle, who has been ill at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue, is very much better.

"WREN'S NEST" WILL CHANGE HANDS SOON

Uncle Remus Association Will Get Deeds to Property Next Tuesday.

The rich and the poor will see their love for Uncle Remus take substantial form next Tuesday, when the deeds, formally transferring "The Sign of the Wren's Nest" from the Harris family to the Uncle Remus association arrive in the city.

The formal opening of the old home of the creator of Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, under the auspices of the association, will take place some time in May.

The members of the Harris family are delighted over the transfer of the home to the association. Their sentiment is expressed in the statement made by Mrs. Harris to the members of the organization which has striven so hard and so successfully to raise the necessary funds:

"I know our home will always be kept as he left it and as he loved it. I know that you will cherish every tree, flower and shrub that he spoke of and loved, as I have cherished them. You will let the wild things feel at home, as he did, and as I have done."

Snap Bean farm still remains to be purchased. About $5,000 more is needed to complete the fund for its transfer.

The Uncle Remus association plans to keep the old home exactly as it was when he passed away. A museum will be established, and probably a branch of the Carnegie library.

Among those who contributed to the purchase of the home were: John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, Theodore Roosevelt, Eessie Tift, college, Randall Memorial association, Children of the Confederacy, and school children of Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Harris is now living with her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Camp.

MOTHER AND SON SUE
STREET CAR COMPANY

As a result of an accident on Whitehall street last August, in which a 15-year-old messenger boy was knocked from his wheel and his leg cut off under a car, Mrs. Sarah Todd, the boy's mother, has sued the street car company for $3,000 damages, and the boy himself, Horace Cooper, has sued for $10,000. The suits were filed in the superior court on New Year's day by Reuben Arnold, as attorney.

The boy's claim for damages is based on the permanent injury which he has suffered in the amputation of his leg, while the mother's claim is based on the loss of support, which she has suffered during the six years' intervening between the time of the accident and the time her son would be 21 years old.

FIXTURE MAKERS WILL CO-OPERATE

Headquarters Established in Atlanta for new Association.

With the opening of the new year, headquarters were established in Atlanta for a new trade association, which was organized at a meeting of store fixture manufacturers, held in Columbus, Ga., on Monday. It is known as the Southern Fixture Manufacturers' association, and is the first organization of its kind in the south. Its purpose will be the improvement generally of trade and manufacturing condition, obtaining more thorough cooperation among the members, procuring the best possible freight rates and ascertaining and using the safest methods of transit.

A. W. Falkenburg, of Atlanta, who was made secretary and treasurer, will conduct the business of the association temporarily from his office with the Kruger Manufacturing company, Roseland station, of which he is secretary.

Plans are made for quarterly meetings of the association members. The first of these will take place in Atlanta early in April, probably in one of the hotel assembly rooms.

H. M. Wade, president of the Wade Manufacturing company, Charlotte, N. C., was made president of the association. J. H. Dilon, secretary and treasurer of the National Show Case company, of Columbus, Ga., was made vice president. The executive committee consists of J. E. Britt, president of the Georgia Show Case company, Columbus, Ga.; Charles Kruger, of the Kruger Manufacturing company, Atlanta; and George W. Muller, of the Muller Bank Fixture company, Atlanta.

JUDGE WILLIAM LITTLE IS NOW RLSTING WELL

Judge William A. Little, former justice of the Georgia supreme court, and one of the south's most distinguished lawyers and jurists, was resting well last night, with but little change in his condition. He has been at the Elkin-Goldsmith sanitarium for some days, suffering from a complication of diseases, and his condition is regarded as critical, owing to his advanced age.

PHONE COMPANY PUTS PENSION PLAN IN EFFECT

A New Year's message to all the thousands of employees of the Bell Telephone system, the Western Union Telegraph company and the Western Electric company has been received from the president of these allied corporations, Theodore N. Vail, calling attention to the new plan of benefit for disability and for pensions which went into effect yesterday.

After reviewing the purposes of the corporations in establishing the fund and the benefits that come to the workers under the alliance of all the companies under the same administration, President Vail concludes: "It is our hope that we have already accomplished has helped the men and women of the Bell system to become happier and better American citizens, and it is our New Year's wish that what has been planned to the future will contribute to their constantly increasing happiness and betterment."

Fined for Carelessness.—C. Goldstein, who was fined $3.75 by the recorder Monday after an investigation of short weight grain sacks in a case made by the inspector of weights and measures, says that he was not fined on a charge of shipping short weight sacks, but because he had been careless in allowing a sack to fill some of the sacks with short weight. Recorder Broyles stated that the fine was imposed because of Mr. Goldstein's carelessness. He said in court that the evidence showed that Mr. Goldstein was a business man of excellent character.

FULTON LEAGUE GAMES TONIGHT

Tonight's Games.

Two games will be played in the Fulton league tonight, the first beginning at 8 o'clock. The participants are Georgia, one of the contestants, and the S. V. D. S. V. D. is now the favorite, and the other teams are pretty well bunched for the others, with the Young Men's Christian association being the last.

Neither game tonight will be of the usual half-raising variety, according to the opinion of the spectators. In the first game this season, and is said to have recovered from the defeat they suffered in the first game. The Georgia team was once the best team in the city of its weight. The Azoka team is a pretty good one, and will have to go through a rough time.

S. V. D. in the other game will expect to win, but it is not so good as the Georgia team. The Georgia team is a little better than the S. V. D. unless something out of the ordinary happens. Although Compton H won its last game, it has many defeats. So, on this night, S. V. D. has a perfect record. So, on account of the unevenly-matched teams to be played, the Georgia team is not so usual. Some beautiful work is anticipated, however, as both S. V. D. and Georgia are playing at passing and general team work.

The Fight by Rounds.
ROUND 1—The fight started at 3:18. Palzer rushed McCarty and McCarty wallowed him with left and right to the head. McCarty drove hard right to Palzer's eye. Palzer missed two hard rights and a left. McCarty ducked wild swings. Palzer reached McCarty's waist with hard right. Palzer battered McCarty with hard straight left to the chin. Palzer brought blood from McCarty's lip with another straight left. They clinched. As the bell rang Palzer stopped to shake hands with McCarty.

ROUND SEVEN—McCarthy landed hard right to Palzer's jaw and forced Palzer to make several vicious swings. McCarthy landed a terrific left jab to the hard body blows in a clinch. McCarthy drove a terrific left to Palzer's stomach and forced Palzer to back up. McCarthy landed McCarthy's face with two straight lefts and McCarthy sent Palzer's head back with a terrific left to the face. Both landed hard lefts to the face. McCarthy brought blood from the nose with a terrific left and sent swift lefts and rights to the stomach. McCarthy apparently landed McCarthy's stomach.

ROUND EIGHT—Palzer sent the body blow to put McCarthy's right to the stomach. Both missed and they went into a clinch. McCarthy rammed McCarthy's right into McCarthy's face and McCarthy followed with right and left to the body. McCarthy landed McCarthy's left to McCarthy's face and McCarthy drove a terrific left to McCarthy's stomach. McCarthy rammed Palzer in a clinch crossed with a left to McCarthy's face. McCarthy rammed Palzer's jaw with right and left with terrific speed. They landed McCarthy's center of the ring. McCarthy's round.

flowed from Palzer's eyes and mouth as McCarty shot two terrific straight lefts to his head. As Palzer staggered about blindly Referee Eytan rushed to McCarty and held up his right glove.

Frank Whitney Possesses Knockout Punch in Right Hand; Lavelle Handed It

By Dick Jemison.

Frank Whitney, the "Fighting Carpenter," possesses a wallop. He demonstrated it in his second round knockout to Tommy Lavelle, of Pittsburgh, in the eighth round of their scheduled ten-round bout at the Dixie Athletic Club.

Atlanta boxing fans have always considered Whitney one of the best fighters in the city, but they were not here, but they have never looked on him as a hard hitter. But this has been because Whitney's right hand has been so good that he has been fighting. In previous bouts he has depended on his science to win him the prize money and to cut loose with his sleep-producer.

But Wednesday night the right digit was in fine shape. And Whitney used it to good advantage. He was showing that traveled little more than a foot and a half proving the undoing of the one called Tommy Lavelle, and showing such a tough boy is a feather in Whitney's cap.

Lavelle showed himself to be game, willing to take a punch and punishment. In previous bouts Lavelle has been doing the punching, but Wednesday night he met him master. Whitney's superior ring knowledge carried the day.

Lavelle's terrible wallop was noticeable. He was able to take a punch as just the same as ever, but the clever Whitney either sidestepped, dodged or blocked the blow, and when it did not do that he was able to take it without even rock the Cedar Rapids lad's

When Whitney had a shade in the second, trading wallops with Lavelle with but few returns. In the third round, he took the lashing and in the head-to-head, the hand-to-hand, he might have had six hands for all the good it would have done him. In the fourth and grinned at the latter's feeble attempts to hit him. In the fifth, Lavelle rallied somewhat and landed a few even breaks.

In the sixth after some sparring and mixing, Whitney dropped Lavelle with a right. In the seventh, when the gong rang Lavelle was mighty sorry. In the seventh, after a repetition of the tactics in the sixth, Whitney landed a right to the face, followed with a fierce right swing to the jaw and Lavelle hit the mat. Referee saw Lavelle get up when the gong rang, saving Lavelle.

But his respite was short. Rushing out of his corner at the start of the eighth round, he landed a right to the mill with a succession of rights and lefts to the body and face, a right to the head and Lavelle down for good and for all.

After the bout Whitney put it up to Walter Little, that if that worthy was willing to take on the champion, Lavelle first. Whitney claims Lavelle to be a tough boy, and if Little can't knock him away he is willing to talk business with Little.

Billy Kerr made short work of Danny McShean in the scheduled six-round bout. McShean was a tough, but shean through the ropes twice. In the Lavelle looked like a novice before Whitney's masterful boxing. Frank admitted him repeatedly caught him out of every turn of his swings on his arms, returning the bum leads with left jabs and then crossing with his right he would dish out an assortment of punishment. If Lavelle thought that mixing would stand him in good stead he was quickly disillusionized. In the exchanges head-on-head Whitney had all the better of it.

The first round was comparatively

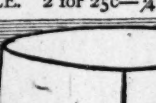

First round and before the gong ended the round had him in such a dazed way that Referee Saul justly stopped the battle and awarded the decision to Karp.

Spider Britt's star has set. Kid Young, the "newsboy champion" of Atlanta, knocked him cold in the third round after the most gruelling milling ever seen here. Young was too much for Britt. His wallop carried more steam, he was stronger and heavier and had the Spider worried from the start.

BILL SMITH HOT ON GRIFF'S TRAIL

Believes He'll Land Musser—Doesn't Want Boehling—Becker Glad to Return Here.

Washington, January 1.—(Special.)—Manager Billy Smith, of the Cracker, who is visiting at the home of Clarke Griffith, pilot of the Senators, announced tonight that he had closed for two more seasons with the club, which contains such well known players as Tommy McMillan, Wild Conroy, Jack Delvey and others.

Asked if he had obtained Pitchers Musser and Boehling and Outfielder Tommy Long from Washington, Smith replied:

"I don't know whether or not I want Boehling. Griffith has promised me Long and has just asked for waver on Musser. I hope to get Musser to my string, for everybody tells me that he is a promising youngster.

"My reason for not wanting Boehling is that yesterday I had a long talk with Southpaw Duck Becker, who was with the Cracker last year, and he seems to be perfectly satisfied to return to Atlanta and play under me.

"Becker has taken good care of himself this winter and is anxious to start south. He has accepted my terms and will sign a contract when I tender him one. Boehling is such a green youngster that at best he is an uncertain proposition, while Becker, with his experience, would be more valuable."

ALL-SOUTHERN STARS WIN GAME

Dallas, Texas, January 1.—Using old style football almost exclusively, an "all-star" southern football team defeated a team composed of star players from southern colleges here today, 26 to 0. The latter team was made up principally of Texas players. Vanderbilt, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and the Southwestern Presbyterian university contributed players for the southern team.

Cabell, Southern Presbyterian university, made two touchdowns and kicked two goals. The other touchdowns were scored by Morrison, Green, Hardage, of Vanderbilt.

The play of these men and Neely, of Vanderbilt; Cheape, of Southern; Von Press, of the Christian Brothers' college, St. Louis, were features of the game.

FORMER ATLANTAN HERE FOR GUN SHOOT

R. F. Perry, a former Atlantan, who now represents the Remington-Union Metallic Cartridge company, with headquarters in Houston, Texas, is here in the interest of the sunny south handicap shoot, which is to take place here January 27 to 30. This promises to be the greatest event of its kind ever pulled off in the south.

Kilbane Outclassed

St. Louis, January 1.—The scheduled eight-round bout between Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, featherweight champion, and Willie Kirtland, of St. Louis, ended in the second round to save the local boy from being knocked out.

THEATERS

"In Old Kentucky."

The attraction scheduled for presentation the coming week at the Lyric theater needs little recommendation nowadays, for "In Old Kentucky" merits are well-known and generally recognized. In "In Old Kentucky" there are little pickaninies galore, a very exciting race scene, much good comedy and some extraordinarily big dramatic moments. Miss Mildred Johnson will play the "Flower of the Mountain" (brave Madge Brierly) again, her fourth year, with the organization.

"Baby Mine."

The athletic prowess exhibited by Miss Marjorie Cortland, of the "Baby Mine" company, which has been a standing broad jump in the second act from the center of the stage to her bed, fully a distance of 12 feet, is certainly deserving of some consideration, and marks her as an athlete of no mean ability. And there is positively no reason why she shouldn't be entered as one of the American team at the next Olympic games when they are held in 1916. Regarding same, Miss Cortland says, "If I had only been a man this past summer, I would have certainly left with the team, when they sailed for Sweden, and I would have added another winning point to the total made by the United States Olympic team. Miss Cortland, for a woman, is an all-round athlete and can do long distance swimming without any exertion and has won any number of medals in amateur contests.

"Everywoman."

Unusual interest attaches to the return to Atlanta tonight of the inspiring dramatic spectacle, "Everywoman," which Henry W. Savage will offer at the Atlanta for an engagement of three days with a Saturday matinee. Since the peculiar novelty was presented here last winter it has marched on to other conquests, having been produced in London, where it made an unqualified hit. The company is a powerful one and includes with the symphony orchestra over 150 people.

Adelaide Thurston.

Adelaide Thurston has scored another triumph, hit with her new play, "The Love Affair." As every one knows the last season in the theatrical profession is the week before Christmas, but Miss Thurston played to capacity houses in all the large cities between Charleston and Birmingham and broke the record at the last named city on Christmas day. Miss Thurston will be seen at the Atlanta theater the first half of next week. Seats go on sale today.

Keith Vaudeville.

Records for attendance on vaudeville performances in Atlanta have been smashed at the Grand this week. "The Antique Girl," with its pretty girls, real vocalists, clever dancers and novelty in stage mountings; Alf Grant and Ethel Hoag in their genuine laugh-winning specialty; the Venetian Four, with instrumental music; and the Four Florimonts in a clever thriller, offer enough to satisfy the most exacting patron—and there are other acts that are fitting on such a bill.

Tales of the Diamond

Humorous and Otherwise

BY BILLY EVANS

(Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Evans.)

Nip Owens, who made such a favorable impression in the National league last year, is the boss of the situation in every game he umpires. During his minor league days he depended on beef and brawn, when his backing from the league president was none too secure. Naturally, in his bush league career he got a reputation for being something of a fighter. Owens first came into prominence in the American association. His work was so good that it attracted the attention of the major leagues. He was given a chance during Harry Pulliam's regime, and made good. When he went to the majors for a trial he was told by the president of his league not to sign for less than a certain sum, which he named, and said "I'm going to make you like me," replied Owens.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE MANAGERS MADE SOME GREAT NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

Kid Elberfeld—To fool 'em all by other Coveleskie, Phelan or Almeida making love to the umpires.

Billy Smith—To abstain from the practice of profanity and to allow the profane practice of the filthy of a ball club.

Mike Finn—To keep my mouth shut at the next meeting of the Southern league, by thunder.

Johny Dobbs—To manage a ball club where it has a home or not.

"13" THOUGHT BY WILSON TO BE HIS LUCKY NUMBER

Princeton, N. J., January 1.—Nineteen hundred and thirteen was greeted by President-elect Wilson today as his "lucky one."

"Thirteen have always been running through my life in connection with some good fortune," he said today.

The year of his nomination to the presidency produced 13 by adding the digits 1-9-1-2. Woodrow Wilson carried just thirteen letters. He was thirteen years a professor at Princeton. He was elected the thirteenth president of the university, he presided over about 1,300 students.

ALMOST $19,000,000 SPENT IN 1912 TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT

New York, January 1.—Almost $19,000,000 was spent in the anti-tuberculosis campaign in the United States in 1912, the total showing an increase of nearly $4,500,000, or 29 per cent, over 1911.

OVER 200,000 MEN IN THE MILITIA

Gen. Mills Reports National Guard Better Armed and Equipped.

Washington, January 1.—The strength of the organized militia of the United States at the time of the last annual inspection was 9,142 officers and 12,710 enlisted men, an increase of 1,864, says Brigadier General A. L. Mills, chief of the division of militia affairs, in his annual report made public today. He finds existing organizations better armed, uniformed and equipped, better instructed and better officered than ever before. The infantry of the organized militia consists of 6,216 officers and 9,627 enlisted men, organized into 139 regiments, eight separate battalions and fourteen separate companies. This shows an increase of 2,712 enlisted men and a reduction of 175 commissioned officers as compared with 1911. The number of regiments was reduced by two, and three separate battalions and five separate companies added.

General Mills asserts that there are too many infantry regiments maintained in an incomplete state of organization through the permanent lack of one or more companies. The problem of securing an efficient field artillery continues the greatest difficulty. General Mills observes, and the deficiency in this arm cannot be made good by hastily created volunteers after the outbreak of war.

"A reduction of the time necessary to secure efficiency in this arm with its present gun, coupled with the growing importance of the arm," he adds, "is probably the factor that has decided all nations, excepting the United States, overwhom they intend to increase their field artillery relative to the other arm."

He finds that instruction in target practice is not generally satisfactory, except in those states where a per cent or more of the total strength, armed with the rifle, have qualified as third-class men or better.

CRIME ON THE INCREASE IN ATLANTA, SAYS REPORT

Crime in Atlanta is on the increase, according to the report for the year of 1912 just submitted to the chief of police by Newport Lanford, head of the detective department.

There were 2,757 arrests made by his men in 1912, with 411 convictions. The convictions in 1911 were one-fourth less, of 307.

There were 77 cases of burglary in 1912, more than double the preceding year, when only 38 cases were made. Larceny cases took a less notable increase. Of these there were 216 during the year, as against 192 the previous year.

In the recovery of stolen property, the chief of police to a record of $93,380.93 in goods from pawnshops and thieves, for a total of 1,526 persons.

Not the Same Goldstein.—J. H. Goldstein, dealer in groceries and foodstuffs at 167 Peachtree street, came to the Constitution yesterday to say that he was not the same Goldstein who was fined in police court for short weights. Mr. Goldstein says that he has been called up by many people, who were under the impression that he had been tried in police court.

EAST LAKE HOME, AND SUBDIVISION

2,500 FEET from East Lake club grounds, we have 3 acres of beautiful level ground with a 9-room, 2-story house on it. House is modern and in perfect condition. All kinds of fruits and flowers.
Fruit trees in full bearing. This is without question one of the prettiest places on the East Lake Drive, as the ground is level and covered with shade. It is a corner with street running through it.
Fronts 445 feet on Hill street; 471 feet on Fayetteville Road; 47 1/2 feet on Metropolitan avenue and car line; 220 feet on East Lake Drive Way.

We do not think that there is another property like it, or with the future that this has, offered around Atlanta. We consider it worth $12,000 today. The owner is very anxious to sell it and has given us 30 days exclusive sale, authorizing us to make a price of $8,750 on terms of $1,000 cash, the balance to be paid $1,000 per year.
We believe that this property subdivided will bring $12,500 to $13,000 in the spring.

If you want a bargain, see us quick.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES
FROM DAY TO DAY

An association of Georgia architects is to be formed at a meeting in Atlanta next Tuesday morning. The convention will be called to order at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel, and two sessions will be held during the day. In the evening the architects will be guests at a Dutch supper given at one of Atlanta's clubs.

The Georgia association will be modeled considerably after the organization of North Carolina architects, which has been in successful existence for eight years. Two or three architects from North Carolina will be present, and will make short addresses.
The architects of South Carolina have been organized for some time, and recently an association of Florida architects was formed.

The idea of an organization of Georgia architects originated with contact T. W. Smith, of T. W. Smith & Co., of Columbus. Mr. Smith sent circular letters to sixty-two firms and individuals in the state, and forty-two of the architects addressed have responded, indorsing the idea and expressing their desire of joining the organization.

SEVEN MEN KILLED AND MANY INJURED

Chesapeake and Ohio Train Crashes
Through a Bridge—Death List
May Be Lengthened.

Huntington, W. Va., January 1.—Seven men were killed and the lives of several others are believed to have been lost today when a westbound Chesapeake and Ohio railroad freight train crashed through a weakened bridge across Guyandotte river, at Guyandotte, a suburb near this city. The known dead are:

F. E. WEBER, engineer, Russell, Ky.
HENRY WHITE, bridge watchman, Huntington, W. Va.
CHARLES MADDIE, bridge worker, Talcott, W. Va.
JAMES C. CRAWFORD, bridge worker, St. Albans, W. Va.
EMMETT GOOD, bridge worker, Talcott, W. Va.
CHARLES COYNER, bridge worker, Teays, W. Va.
L. S. WHEELER, Huntington, W. Va.

Upwards of a dozen men were injured. A crew of thirty or more ironworkers were employed installing a double-track across the bridge when the freight train approached. A few left their posts, it is said, believing the bridge unsafe.

When the train was near the center of the structure the bridge crumbled. The heavy train crashed into the water and the bridge debris covered the train wreckage.

Members of the train crew and ironworkers not caught beneath the wreckage struggled through the water to shore.

The engine, one of the largest types, probably will have to be removed from the water before progress can be made in recovering bodies. The accident is believed to have been caused by water undermining the piling that had been put in at low water stage. A heavy rise in the river had caused considerable loss during the past several days, but the railroad officials felt confident that the bridge was safe. A passenger train had passed over the bridge a few moments before it gave way under the weight of the freight train.

A rigid investigation is under way both by the civil authorities and officials of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

MRS. STOKES DIES IN WEST END HOME

Funeral Friday Afternoon at 2:30, O'clock in West End
Baptist Church.

Mrs. Emma Estelle Stokes, the wife of T. L. Stokes, of the firm of Davidson-Paxon-Stokes company, and well known in Atlanta for her devotion to church and charity work, passed away Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the residence, 17 Gordon street, in West End.

In her death the West End Baptist church, of which she had been a member for many years, loses one of its most devoted members, while her family and the community in which she lived and moved, lose a constant and much beloved friend.

Mrs. Stokes was born in Cartersville, Ga., 37 years ago. She moved to Alabama and there met T. L. Stokes, whom she married. They moved to Atlanta, and since then have both become widely known and respected. Besides her husband, she is survived by three children, Thomas and Morris Stokes and Miss Frances Stokes.

Funeral services will be held at the West End Baptist church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and the body of Mrs. Stokes will then be laid to rest in West View cemetery. The pallbearers will be Frederick J. Paxon, W. Horace Roberts, A. R. Colcord, C. A. Forrest, Craig Coffield and A. C. McHann. Deacons of the West End church will also form an honorary escort. Relatives of Mrs. Stokes are expected to arrive from Alabama Thursday morning.

DR. ROBINS TIES KNOT 52 TIMES DURING 1912

Dr. J. B. Robins, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, tied the matrimonial knot for the fifty-second time in 1912, when a couple applied for his aid not many hours before the year came to a close. Mr. M. Boxer was the groom, and Miss Nannie M. Gaston was the bride at this wedding, this most lucky of weddings, when Dr. Robins reached the number of "four times thirteen." Dr. Robins says he was well content to end the year on that lucky number.

EIGHT BURIED MINERS HAVE BEEN RESCUED

Tamaqua, Pa., January 1.—After being imprisoned behind a fall of coal, rock and other debris, eight of the nine men entombed yesterday in the colliery of the East Lehigh Coal company near here were rescued alive tonight. The other man, Joseph Walters, is missing, and is believed to have been killed. The men were imprisoned nearly forty hours.

CHRISTMAS GIFT RIFLE PROVES FATAL TO BOY

Louisville, Ky., January 1.—With a rifle which he had received as a Christmas gift, Hugh Fingan, Jr., aged 12, was accidentally shot and killed here last night by his 15-year-old brother, Charles. The tragedy occurred in the boys' home.

HANDS OF 7,000 SHAKEN BY TAFT

Last New Year Reception of the President Attracted a Great Crowd.

Washington, January 1.—President Taft's last New Year's reception at the white house attracted today one of the greatest crowds that ever has gathered at the executive mansion. Clear skies and late fall weather brought out the general public in extraordinary numbers, and a new record for attendance of private citizens probably was established. Surrounded by his family, members of his cabinet and distinguished company, the president received officials and citizens of high and low degree, and when the last call or had been greeted, Mr. Taft had shaken hands with more than 7,000 persons.

The reception began shortly before noon, members of the cabinet and the diplomatic corps being received first. Next were the justices of the United States supreme court and other federal courts, United States ambassadors and ministers, senators and representatives, army and navy officers, a long line of military societies and other organizations. Then came the public.

Ambassador James Bryce, attending his last New Year's reception at the white house, as he soon leaves his post, was one of the recipients of attention and shared more than usual notice with several other members of the diplomatic corps attending their first function of the kind.

Admiral Dewey drove to the white house in his carriage and did not arrive with the other navy officers, who marched to the mansion in a body from the navy department. Once during the course of the reception President Taft himself was momentarily retired as the center of all international attention when two Klukit Indians from the state of Washington marched up to greet him. One chief, wearing patent leather bedroom slippers and a modern suit, topped off by a blazing red bandanna, and the other wrapped in a huge buffalo robe, shook hands with the president and then in the east room had an impromptu reception of their own.

The white house reception was the New Year's day feature in the capital, preceded numerous other brilliant affairs. Secretary of State and Mrs. Knox entertained the members of the diplomatic corps at breakfast at the Pan-American building, nearly every foreign nation with embassy or legation here being represented.

The day's celebration at the white house closed tonight with a New Year's dance in honor of the president's son, Charles. The affair was attended by the younger social set of Washington.

General Robert Murray Dead, Baltimore, January 1.—General Robert Murray, 51 years old, surgeon general of the United States army from 1882 to 1886, when he was retired, died of pneumonia here tonight. He entered the army as a surgeon in 1845.

J. Y. SMITH HEADS ATLANTA EAGLES

Impressive exercises, with handsome remembrances to three retiring officers as appreciation of their loyal services, marked the annual installation of officers by the Eagles at their clubrooms in the Steiner-Emery building last night.

T. M. Webb retired as manager, after three years in office, and he was given a massive watch fob with the Eagle emblem. His two assistants were remembered. F. J. Bricken being presented an Eagle ring, and G. A. Bricken a gold watch. H. J. Vollmer made the presentation speeches.

The following are the officers who were installed for the coming year: N. P. Healy, past worthy president; John Y. Smith, worthy president; E. H. McDonald, worthy vice president; L. H. Callaway, worthy chaplain; H. A. Fisher, worthy secretary; J. J. Barnes, Jr., worthy treasurer; W. H. Herter, worthy inside guard; C. C. Arnold, worthy outside guard; Dr. C. A. Rhodes, worthy physician; W. T. Winn, T. M. Webb and J. H. Beck, worthy trustees.

S. R. Greene succeeds Mr. Webb as manager, and he has appointed as his assistant A. T. Rice. Both are highly thought of in the Eagles' council.

UHLAN—World's Greatest Trotter
BILLINGS' trotting gelding, Uhlan, made historic the 1911 meet at Cleveland, when, on August 11, he lowered the world's record held from 1906 by Major Delmar, by covering the half-mile to wagon in 56 1/4 seconds. This clipped 3 1/4 seconds off Major Delmar's mark.
Uhlan's new record is not only the world's trotting record to wagon, but even faster than Major Delmar's record of 59 1/4 seconds to sulky and only a quarter of a second slower than Dan Patch's paced half-mile to sulky behind a wind shield.

If Hamlet Were a Printer
To cut or not to cut; that is the question.
Whether 'tis wiser for a man to suffer
Th' apparent broods of small-minded rivals,
Or to take arms 'gainst unfair competition,
And by price-slashing end them?
To cut, to get
The order; and by getting the order, to say we put
The kibosh on unfair competitors—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To cut—to get the order:
To get the biz! Perchance to get it in the neck; ay, there's the rub;
For what man recks of cost when price he cuts?
And how long can he play his losing game
Simply to get orders?
Then let us pause. There's the respect
He must have for his trade, for who would deal
For long with one whose argument is solely price.
With one that cuts and slashes and mauls
His prices, simply to get orders
On which he may lose money?
Far rather bear what ills we have,
Meet unfair competition on the square,
Ask profit-bringing prices, than to yield
To th' impulse of the moment, and to cut,
And slice, and slash, and shade, and squeeze
Our half-guessed figures in the press
Of rivalry. Such men may gain some paltry orders, but must lose
Their self-respect, the high esteem of others.
They stay in business for a time, 'tis true,
But shame the name of printer.

THE SOUTH'S MOST SPLENDIDLY EQUIPPED PREP SCHOOL
College Park, Eight Miles From Atlanta, Georgia
Fills every hour of a boy's life with wholesome mental development, body building, moral and social training, and preparation for a man's part in the world's work. A thoroughly disciplined, modernly appointed, attractive school for boys and young men—a gentleman's school, limited to about 125 boarding pupils, so grouped, as to give every teacher about 12 Cadets for tutoring and oversight at night. Delightful home life—a big happy family of successful, cultured teachers and pupils. Every sanitary convenience. Electric lights, steam heat, artesian water. Elevation nearly 1,200 feet, no malaria, perfect health.
Best Table Fare and Prettiest School Campus in the South.
Three regular Courses—Classical, Engineering, Commercial.
Member Southern Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools.
Active U. S. Officer in Charge of Military Department.
